Golan pullback signing set

GENEVA (UPI) — The Israeli-Syrian military working group meeting without addressing each other directly, said today all documents and maps for troop and weapon disengagement have been completed and will be signed at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The final preparations were made in a meeting between the two sides today that lasted two and a quarter hours.

Irving to write trucking story

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (UPI) — Writer Clifford Irving has been hired to ghost-write a book about three poor farm boys who built a three truck outfit into a multi-million-dollar business.

The plot of the story is Cleo Crouch, who said Monday he has paid Irving $40,000 to supervise the writing after checking the background of the story. He picked Irving because he thought he was a good writer.

Scotland Yard tightens security

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard today ordered tightened security at airports and public buildings in preparation for a possible revenge attack for the hunger-strike death of a convicted Irish Republican Army prisoner — a death the IRA called an "act of murder."

Police sources said security was boosted at "all the obvious places" following the death Monday night of Michael Gaughan, 24, after a fast of 64 days at Parkhurst Prison on the Isle of Wight.

S. Viet force retakes town

SAIGON (UPI) — A task force of 1,500 government infantrymen and commandos broke the back of two North Vietnamese battalions early today and recaptured An Dien village, 24 miles north of Saigon, military sources said.

The sources said advancing government troops beat back counterattacks and knocked out five tanks in five days of fighting to regain the village captured by North Vietnamese along with two nearby defense posts on May 16.

Brown given nod for JCS chair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force Gen. George S. Brown, 55, received unanimous approval of the Senate Armed Services Committee Monday as the new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Brown replaces Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, who retires next month. The panel also approved nomination of Gen. David C. Jones, 52, as Brown's successor as Air Force chief of staff. Both nominations now go to the Senate for confirmation.

Rockets batter Phnom Penh theater

PHNOM-PENH (UPI) — Rebel rockets slammed into the center section of the Phnom Penh today, hitting a crowded movie theater and killing at least 11 persons.

Police said five Chinese-built 107mm rockets hit the city at mid-morning, when the theater was jammed with matinee fans. A pool of blood filled the sidewalk in front of the theater as patrons scrambled out of the ruins.

The attack killed at least 11 persons and wounded 18 others. Rebel rocket assaults on the Cambodian capital have killed 18 persons and wounded 39 more in the past eight days.

Justice Department aide quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Donald E. Santarelli, head of the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for the past 14 months, has quit his $40,000-a-year job after suggesting that President Nixon resign. It was learned today.

Santarelli submitted his resignation to the White House on Saturday, an informed source said.

Hoffa evidence bid refused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has rejected an attempt by former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa to force the White House to hand over documents pertaining to his release from prison in 1971.

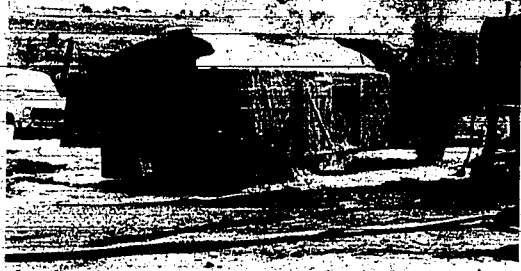

In quashing Hoffa's subpoena seeking confidential memos, U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt said Monday he would hear arguments Wednesday on Hoffa's claim that a condition of his release — banning any union activity before 1980 — should be lifted.

Gas truck burns near Jerome

Iron workers join South Idaho strike

BOISE — Another 200 workers have joined a crippling strike that has halted nearly all commercial construction in southern Idaho.

The 200-member Iron Workers Local 733 Monday night voted to strike all Associated General Contractors' projects after failing to reach agreement on a new contract.

The iron workers, joined about 6,000 construction workers across southern Idaho who voted Saturday to walk out on their jobs Monday, said the strike has shut down more than $100 million worth of projects, including the Perrine Bridge in Twin Falls, the American Falls Dam, Bridge replacement and the Teton and Ririe dams in eastern Idaho.

The strike now takes in six trade crafts, including carpenters, laborers, cement masons, operating engineers, teamsters and the iron workers.

Ross Jensen, business agent for iron workers, today said about 40 per cent of the 200 members cast a unanimous vote for the strike Monday night.

The iron workers have been held to a 4.6 per cent wage increase during the last two years and want a $1.31 per hour raise this year according to Jensen. The pay boost would equal 9.8 per cent.

But, Jensen said, the contractors are offering 70 cents an hour now and 30 cents an hour more in December.

Jensen said negotiations with the contractors have been halted, but "if the contractors

Merchant Lane dies

KETCHUM — Jack P. Lane, 84, a longtime Ketchum merchant and sheepman, died Sunday in Moritz Community Hospital at Sun Valley.

He came to Ketchum in 1916 and established the Lane Mercantile Co. which was known as a supply center for sheepmen and herders — in 1920 he entered the sheep business, running sheep in the Sawtooth region for many years.

Jerome victim named

JEROME — The victim of a single car accident near Jerome Monday morning has been identified as Jerry Russell Skaggs, 35, Jerome.

Sheriff Eliza Hall said the man had been working as a jailer at the Jerome County Jail until about a week ago, and had reportedly been living in Twin Falls since then. The accident occurred shortly after 7 a.m. Monday.

He died when his automobile plunged into a canal four miles north and three and one-quarter miles east of Jerome.

Testimony welcome

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for President Nixon said today they welcomed any testimony on Watergate that former presidential counsel Charles W. Colson might give, saying it would help Nixon's defense.

Colson pleaded guilty Monday to a felony count of obstruction of justice for trying to influence the outcome of the trial of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg. All other charges were dropped against Colson, who agreed to cooperate with Watergate investigators. This may include testifying at hearings or trials.

It will be the first time Nixon has met Sadat, who became warm friends with Kissinger during the secretary of state's marathon peace missions.

The White House announced this itinerary for the President's trip:

June 10 — leaves Washington for Salzburg; 12-14 — Egypt; 15 — Saudi Arabia; 15-16 — Syria; 16-17 — Israel; 17-18 — Jordan;

Beating suspect held

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police arrested a suspect late Monday after a woman was found suffering from severe head injuries.

The suspect was charged with assault with intent to commit murder.

Rita Marie Ewing, 21, was transferred from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital to St. Anthony's Hospital in Boise about 5 a.m. Monday after she was found on the street corner of Second Avenue West and Second Street West at about 1:30 a.m.

She was in serious condition in intensive care today.

Detectives arrested the suspect, Benny George Evans, 25, at about 11 p.m. Monday on the assault charge. The suspect was scheduled to be arraigned today.

Chief of Detectives Tim Qualls said the case is still under investigation and declined to release further details of the incident.

Austria first stop on Nixon jaunt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will leave Monday for a five-nation swing through the Middle East, featuring stops in Egypt, Syria and Israel.

The trip, the White House said today, is aimed at strengthening the "mutual trust and confidence" developed between the United States and nations of the area over the past several months.

The announcement said the trip would last until June 18. Just a week later, the President will be setting off on another major trip — his summit visit to Moscow, possibly tying in a trip to Japan before he returns home.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will accompany the President, the White House said.

The White House announced the itinerary after the dates were disclosed earlier in the Middle East. The first major stop will be Cairo where Nixon will meet for the first time with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Nixon's schedule calls for him to visit Cairo next Wednesday and Thursday, followed by a two-day visit in Damascus, capital of Syria. The announcement of the Syria visit came as Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said in Damascus that full diplomatic relations were being restored with Washington.

The President, accompanied by his wife, plans to fly Monday to the quaint Austrian town of Salzburg, arriving Monday night for a rest stop before proceeding to Egypt on Wednesday morning.

It will be the first time Nixon has met Sadat, who became warm friends with Kissinger during the secretary of state's marathon peace missions.

The White House announced this itinerary for the President's trip:

June 10 — leaves Washington for Salzburg; 12-14 — Egypt; 15 — Saudi Arabia; 15-16 — Syria; 16-17 — Israel; 17-18 — Jordan;

18 — leaves for Washington.

The official announcement made in Cairo of the Nixon visit said the purpose of the Nixon-Sadat conferences was intended "to strengthen relations between Egypt and the United States and to develop mutual understanding and friendship between their peoples."

Cairo sources said Egypt attaches "great importance" to Nixon's visit and will give him a "top-notch, red-carpet reception."

The improved relations which have resulted in restoration of U.S.-Egyptian relations began last November, Egypt's officials said, on Kissinger's first visit to Cairo. They said Kissinger "almost immediately hit it off with President Sadat" and it was during that visit that Kissinger succeeded in mediating a six-point cease-fire consolidation agreement between Israel and Egypt.

Regional Obituaries

Friends may call at Home Funeral Chapel this evening and until 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Jack P. Lane

KETCHUM — Jack P. Lane, 84, longtime Ketchum resident, died Sunday at Moritz Community Hospital following a short illness.

Mr. Lane came to Ketchum in 1915 and established 'The Lane Mercantile Co. He entered the sheep business in 1920 and for many years his store was the meeting place for all the shepherds of the area.

The building in which Lane's store was housed is now occupied by First Security Bank.

Lane also played a significant part in the early history of Sun Valley. During construction of the ski resort in 1936, his store was the check-in point for construction workers and, Union Pacific employees coming to Ketchum.

In 1937, at the request of Averil Harriman, Lane established a ski shop at Sun Valley now known as Pete Lane's.

Mr. Lane was born in Stockville, Neb. in 1890. He attended the University of Minnesota where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

He married Delta Crandall on Mar. 13, 1913. The couple moved to Shoshone where Lane and his father operated Shoshone Hardware Co. until Lane moved to Ketchum in 1916.

For several years Lane operated an export business in northern Mexico.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Bobbie McNeill and a son, John C. (Pete) Lane; Ketchum; two sisters, Mrs. C. L. Lewis, Pocatello, and Mrs. Joseph Bright, Luby, Md.

GEORGE BENHAM

District post sought

TWIN FALLS — George Benham, 67, Twin Falls, Monday announced his candidacy for the district 3 Twin Falls County Commission seat. He will oppose incumbent William Chancey in the Republican primary election for the post. "I just don't like the way that Bill Chancey is spending the taxpayers' money," Benham said Monday. "I've talked to a lot of other people and they don't like it either," he said. "I've got nothing else to do and I thought I'd try to do something about it," Benham said. He would not specify which of Chancey's spending decisions he objected to. "If there's any fuss created, I'm going to let him start it,"

Benham said. "I've got the support of a lot of Republicans but I haven't gone to the central committee or anybody else," he said. "I'm going to let the people talk." "I don't belong to any group and I don't owe anybody a nickel. And that's the way I'm going to keep it," he said Monday. Benham, a retired rancher and contractor, came to Idaho in 1934. He also worked in law enforcement for 16 years, including four years on the Twin Falls police force and two years as the Twin Falls district brand inspector for the state.

3 placed on probation

TWIN FALLS — Three men were placed on probation in Fifth Judicial District Court, two of them having served 120 days with the state board of corrections.

William Earl Dunnegan, 18, Murtaugh, who served 120 days on involuntary manslaughter charges, was placed on 18 months' probation. He was sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary on Jan. 18 with the court retaining jurisdiction for the first 120 days.

He appeared Friday before Judge Theron W. Ward, who suspended the remainder of the sentence and placed him on probation.

Charges resulted from the death Nov. 21, 1973, of his brother John Allan Dunnegan in what the defendant said was a quick draw practice between the two brothers.

The complaint against the defendant also alleged an argument had developed between the two prior to the shooting at their Murtaugh home.

Judge Ward also placed John N. Richardson, 26, Twin Falls, on 18 months probation after completion of the first 120 days of a five year sentence on charges of resisting arrest by means of violence.

He was charged with kicking a city police officer, Kenneth Johnston in the face, fracturing his jaw. The incident occurred Aug. 28, 1971.

He was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary after an earlier conviction and sentence was appealed. He was placed on 18 months probation in what the defendant said was a quick draw practice between completion of a satisfactory probation.

Joe Dennis Quinn, 19, Twin Falls, was also given 18 months probation in connection with a five year sentence in the state penitentiary on charges of possession of a controlled substance, LSD.

He pleaded guilty to charges of possession of the controlled substance and of breaking a folding door to the bar of the Holiday Inn.

Terms of his probation include serving it outside of the state of Idaho on probation to his father, and making restitution for damages at the Holiday Inn from his own earnings.

E. J. MORGAN
in race

TF man seeks Gem post

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Republican E. J. Morgan said Saturday he will run for the state legislature as a representative from District 25.

The seat Morgan seeks is now occupied by Twin Falls businessman Joseph McCollum, who was appointed just last week by Gov. Cecil Andrus to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Rep. Ray Lincoln. Morgan had sought the appointment, but was passed over by Gov. Andrus.

The names of Morgan, McCollum and Tom Stivers were submitted to the governor last week by local Republican committees as possible successors to Rep. Lincoln, who died following a heart attack in mid-May.

In seeking the seat, Morgan will be running against McCollum, a long-time party confederate and personal friend, and against incumbent Rep. Ralph Olmstead. Two of the three will be elected.

Morgan admits that McCollum's appointment to the seat may give McCollum an advantage in the race.

"I think there will be some disadvantage. The incumbents always have a little better opportunity," Morgan said Saturday.

He said he has always been active in serving the community and is "intrigued" by the thought of serving in the legislature.

"I'm not critical of our legislature. I feel that there's a tendency for too much government and I feel that all that can be done on a local level is desirable," he said.

Morgan has been a school board member in Murtaugh, served five years on the Idaho Potato and Onion Commission and spent much time working with the Boy Scouts. "This is my first attempt at any political office," he said.

Regarding McCollum he said, "I'm not so sure that we have such broad differences. He is a friend, I respect him and I feel that he is a very good man."

Era ends on singing telegrams

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The nation's last singing telegram was sung to a young lady at the Brasserie Lippa Parlor in Oakland, Calif.

California was the last state to authorize Western Union to discontinue the 36-year-old service, but the song was sung at 11 p.m. Monday at Reno, because this Nevada city is the firm's western headquarters.

James Carakadon, supervisor, noted that the final song was sung by operator Gail Perry, a "very personable middle-aged young woman with a fine voice."

The final message was a birthday greeting and carried the traditional words, "Happy birthday to you, happy birthday to you."

Just who placed the last call and the name of the young woman who got it was not made public. But whoever they were, they ended an era.

Because of television announcements that the service was finally ending, the last few hours of it were hectic, Carakadon declared.

Student unrest leads to killings

PHNOM-PENH (UPI) — Armed Phnom-Penh high school students shot and killed the Cambodian Education Minister and his top assistant today when government troops stormed the school building where the students were holding them hostage in a protest demanding education reforms.

Prime Minister Long Borel's cabinet imposed a 6 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew on the capital after a week of anti-government student unrest flared into a bloody confrontation that turned a section of the capital into a riot-torn battlefield.

Military police said two students were killed, eight others wounded and 48 arrested in the rioting and that one policeman was wounded. Police gunfire dispersed the students about two hours after the rioting began at 4 p.m. Fire trucks were brought in and hoses turned on the students.

Phnom Penh was hit earlier in the day by Communist insurgents.

15-year-old youth held

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff Paul Corder said his department is holding a 15-year-old youth in connection with a break-in at the Filer High School.

He said the school was entered Sunday night and all items taken have been recovered. Another youth, also charged with breaking into the building, was released to his parents.

Officers said the 15-year-old youth being sought by officers in connection with the break-in fled the area and was pursued for some time while on foot in and around Berger.

He was apprehended about 2 p.m. Monday at the home of a relative near Berger.

TF Council should reply

Whether distasteful or not, the request by the Teamster's Union to organize Twin Falls City employees deserved a civil answer.

Instead, a Teamster's Union representative met with the Twin Falls City Council Monday night to seek an election to establish the union as bargaining agent for most city employees, the council responded only with silence.

Following the union request, Mayor Winston Jones simply moved on the next item of business. There was no answer, whether "no," "yes," or "we'll take the matter under advisement."

In short, the union request was snubbed, the request left hanging.

That is no way for the city to deal with a thorny question. All a snub will accomplish is to irritate people unnecessarily.

The union deserves a clear cut answer. Common courtesy requires no less.

McLuhan on Watergate

Portland Oregonian

If anyone has been wondering what Marshall McLuhan, the medium-is-the-message man, has been doing lately, it can now be reported he has been sitting in Toronto watching and reading about the Watergate story.

McLuhan has developed some thoughts he has compared into theories contained in a copyrighted dispatch sent to the New York Times. He sees the Nixon tapes and transcripts as affording the maximal confrontation between oral and written media.

The oral media, as exemplified by the tapes and by that "resonating sphere that is the television image," favor secrecy, McLuhan argues, while the printed word, which governed in the birth of the nation "fosters diversity and interpretation." He suggests that the entire Watergate affair can be squeezed into a large social and political conflict between conventional written procedures and the innovations of acoustic technology. This certainly must represent one of the most charitable things said about Watergate. But when McLuhan departs from some of the private life conflicts he sees, and proposes that with the moral loss in millivolt conflicts there has been a new demand for higher standards in public life, he is on more solid ground.

Those who have grown up with the new media, McLuhan believes, have developed a new hypocrisy in which they demand of public figures a level of moral dedication they feel no need to exemplify in their own private lives. But can this possibly be a new phenomenon?

One reversal of McLuhan's position seems to be the tendency of elevated politics to "the Utopian level," by virtue of the rigorous and unrelenting public inspection resulting from the electronic media.

But McLuhan has short-circuited himself by neglecting to consider the boredom quotient in the oral media. Just as the public had become satiated with electronic Watergate reporting, the President reawakened national interest by offering the public columns and columns of unrelieved printed words which, in the tradition of conventional political logic, became an instant best-seller.

Unhappily for the President, and for some of the theories of Marshall McLuhan, the dull, gray print medium had become the secret success.

Too many can't read questions on welfare form

WASHINGTON — A couple of weeks ago, the Reading Reform Foundation held its annual meeting at the old Park-Sheraton Hotel here.

And he got away on Capitol Hill, the state was engaged in passing the Omnibus Education Act of 1974. The better dollar value, was at the Sheraton.

The Reading Reform Foundation is a spunky little outfit, founded in 1961 by the late Watson Washburn of New York City. It exists to encourage teaching reading through emphasis on phonics. The foundation operates on an embarrassing budget — embarrassingly low, that is — but it gets results. The phonetic approach is making a comeback.

It will be weeks or months before local school boards and professional educators fully discover all the goodies spread out for them in the Omnibus Education Act. The bill authorizes a staggering $25 billion for federal aid to education over the next four years, including $635 million in programs intended to improve reading skills.

If the whole of this $635 million authorization were actually funded, could the money be effectively spent? The answer is probably no. If some small fraction of this sum were turned over to the Reading Reform Foundation — say, one-tenth of 1 per cent — the taxpayers would get far more per dollar than they ever will get from the professional educators who soon will be romping in clover, crying, "Oh, oh, jump, jump, and look, look!"

It is a sad situation. The principal sponsors of this new reading program, Senators Glenn Beall of Maryland and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, have the best intentions. They are concerned about the inability of so many Americans to read. Millions of children, both black and white, have grown into adulthood unable to read the printed material they must deal with in everyday life.

The problem cries out for attention. The Nixon administration several years ago began an attack with its Right to Read Program in the Office of Education. The program is budgeted at $12 million a year. This pays for a flock of reading experts, demonstration projects, and the like, but the program functions chiefly as a bonanza for bureaucrats, professional grantsmen, paper-shuffling pedagogues, the salesmen of educational gimmicks, and the devisers of tests testing other people's tests.

Senator Beall agrees that the Right to Read Program has had only "spotty success," but he believes the expanded program authorized by his amendment will prove more effective. Local school boards will have considerable discretion in shaping their programs to community needs. Substantial sums would be invested in training reading specialists who would work directly with classroom teachers.

Let us hope for the best. Some teachers appear to get promising results, at least temporarily, from various machines and manual aids that have appeared over the past 20 years. But the results speak eloquently of failure. None of the new techniques has replaced basic phonics, and until the primacy of phonics is fully restored, the new federal millions are likely to go swirling down the drain.

The victims of this tragedy are the children who grow up with only a hazy idea of what reading is all about. It is bad enough that they miss the joy of "good reading," or that they are defeated by the "hard words" of a daily newspaper.

Too many of them, irony of ironies, cannot even read the questions on a public welfare form. How will they cope in the Brave New World?

Change won't be great

(C) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — Sen. J. William Fulbright's defeat in the Democratic primary by Arkansas' Gov. Dale Bumpers may remove a critic of foreign policy whose influence has long since become more symbolic than real.

In private, Fulbright was candid enough with himself to admit that as chairman of the foreign relations committee, he could persuade few of his members to follow his lead in recent years. His influence was negligible in the Senate, even though his voice commanded respect within the so-called foreign-policy establishment.

By nature a dissenter, he has managed to inflame presidents while inspiring admirers. In 1946, he suggested that Harry Truman resign as president, and was later rewarded by Mr. Truman's description of him as an "overeducated Oxford S.O.B."

Fulbright infuriated President Lyndon B. Johnson when he became a harsh critic of the Vietnam War after managing the Tonkin Gulf Resolution on the Senate floor. He was thereafter ignored by LBJ.

President Nixon, despite kind words issued in his name when news of Fulbright's defeat reached Washington, is known to have expressed contempt for the detached Arkansas scholar, whose skepticism about the works of presidents had deepened into an acerbic inspection.

What troubled many of Fulbright's critics was his historic inconsistency about the presidency itself. In recent years, like many of his colleagues, he displayed alarm at the growth of presidential power, always at the expense of the Congress. But in May, 1961, in a speech at Cornell University, he urged that presidents have any choice but to modify and perhaps overhaul the nineteenth century procedures that govern the formulation and conduct of American foreign policy.

Liberals supporters and admirers were disappointed that Fulbright's appearance in the Senate was so unimpressive. They were invariably voting with the segregationists in the Senate. The liberals rationalized their hero's position as one demanded by his constituents.

PETE LISAGOR

Despite his waning influence in the Senate and his ineffectual chairmanship of the once-powerful committee on foreign relations, the 68-year-old Fulbright was astoundingly wooed by Henry Kissinger, Nixon's foreign policy assistant and adviser, both before and since he became secretary of state. Kissinger went out of his way to keep Fulbright briefed, and the courtesy was reciprocated by the senator.

Congressional observers say that if John Sparkman, of Alabama, the ranking Democrat, decides to leave the chairmanship of banking and currency for foreign relations, the Fulbright committee will lose its critical intensity.

Sparkman, at 74, is not disposed to question, challenge, doubt the premises of administration designs in foreign affairs. The maverick that was Fulbright will leave in January, and with him will go a style that was uniquely skeptical and detached. In substance, the change will not be great.

Tough code on children's TV advertising due

WASHINGTON — There is something badly wrong about the "self-regulating" code proposed by the children's television advertising industry to avoid regulation by the federal government.

It is crammed with words that mean little. Little wonder then, that after a look at the code, the Federal Trade Commission is going ahead with plans to develop its own law enforcement policy. The FTC, of course, is late on the scene — as usual — but by now parents must have learned to be thankful for small blessings amid the jungle of TV advertising aimed at kids.

The $400-million a year children's TV advertising industry seems to be saying in profits come first. Its proposal offered by the National Advertising Division (NAD) of the Council of Better Business Bureaus (CBBB), clearly is designed to protect television's right to make as fast buck at the expense of the nation's kids.

"I want to defer final judgment until their plan is operational," says J. Thomas Rosch, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection. Then he adds that he has seen nothing in the NAD proposal "that should deflect the FTC staff from developing a law enforcement policy," expected in the next 50 days or so.

That doesn't matter, or shouldn't. The NAD proposal is a gimmick to keep the FTC off its back until it has time to think. Consider its inherent baldness:

ANDREW TULLY

Adoption of what the Council of Better Business Bureaus (CBBB) has proposed is a gimmick to keep the FTC off its back until it has time to think. Consider its inherent baldness:

Business Bureaus' Vice President R. P. Campbell calls "meaningful principles" that can be revised "as we see how children perceive TV commercials." Children "perceive" TV commercials as the Holy Writ. No further studies are required to prove that point. Therefore, reform the ruddy business.

Submission by major advertisers, including Kellogg's, General Foods, General Mills and assorted toy manufacturers, of prints of new ads "when first aired" over commercial TV, for review by NAD.

That's jolly good for the commercial hustlers. NAD also could recruit "seven or more experts" in the behavioral sciences to determine what children "perceive" in TV commercials. Are we expected to believe that "seven or more experts" will come out with a denunciation of "TV advertising aimed at children?" When was the last time a show bit consultant bit the hand that fed him?

Bah! Peggy Charren, president of Action for Children's Television (ACT), was understating the case when she called NAD's proposals "a slap in the face." Robert Choate, chairman of the Council on Children, Media and Merchandising, was even more polite, describing the proposal as "a gross disappointment."

Fortunately, both Mrs. Charren and Choate agreed that "it is now up to the FTC to move." And there is additional pressure from Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., and FTC Chairman Lewis Engman to persuade TV's tycoons to put their- dolt's house in order.

Well, we shall see. In the meantime, the least we should expect from this pressure is a revision of the so-called "standards" governing the number, repetition, and clustering of commercials, the deceptive promises of premiums, and an outright ban on the huckstering of nutritionally unbalanced foods.

If the FTC comes up with anything less! It should go back and sit down and hand over the job to somebody with guts. Like, maybe, Special Watergate Prosecutor Jean Jaworski.

Russia, China, West: who's frightening whom?

(C) New York Times Service

PARIS — Coincidental with recent rumors of Chou En-Lai's gradual decline either in health or in power are reports that, while in no sense reducing its fears of possible Soviet military intentions, has begun to suggest a different appreciation of Moscow's strategy.

For five years China has been alarmed by the fact the Soviet Union was building up its armed strength along the Sino-Soviet border, possibly with the intention of invading its huge neighbor. Ever since 1960, Peking has warned the West to be on the alert against such a danger to the existing global balance.

The burden of Chinese suggestions has been that the United States and its NATO allies should not allow, directly or indirectly, the possibility that Moscow was using this dream to camouflage a plan for a sudden assault on China.

But this spring another idea seems to fascinate Peking. It is the "big" word that it might itself prove to be the main target of Soviet aggressiveness and that China might be just a blind.

What, if anything, a shift in Peking's analysis may have to do with Chou's position is impossible to say. Official indications so far have only that the 76-year-old Chou is tiring and therefore cutting down protocol activities, not that he is fading from the power scene. There are few ways of getting hard evidence on such political data and there are differences in the analyses of China-watching diplomats in Hong Kong and those in Peking itself.

It is interesting to note, however, that another development may be connected with indications of a new strategic analysis. This is the gradual abandonment of the guerrilla-type people's army uniforms that were re-established in China exactly nine years ago.

The rank system was scrapped in 1965 after Lin Biao, became operational boss of the armed forces, began his self-imposed exile and death in 1971.

C.L. SULZBERGER

It is impossible for any observer, on the basis of these vague hints, to conclude that any major change in Chinese policy is in the offing.

Certainly the primordial factor in such a change would be a conclusion by the Peking "high command" that there is a real shift in Soviet strategy.

One great worry in both Peking and Western capitals is that nobody knows 100 per cent just who controls the Soviet army. Some leading officials suspect — despite all formal indications — that Leonid Brezhnev might be the man, but that it could be Marshal Grechko.

Moreover, it is interesting that in the West statesmen who have worked for détente with Moscow and for better relations with Peking are rather less worried about any imminent possibility of a Soviet attack on China. Yet they also are more skeptical than the Soviet Union is.

outlining up for a new period of getting tough with the West.

The analyses of such statements is always inherently cautious. They are aware that it is far from easy to obtain valid information from Communist societies; also that both Moscow and Peking are experts in producing disinformation — in order to confuse each other.

Despite poverty vow, priest paid $25,000 wage

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. John McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest who took a vow of poverty, is paid $25,000 a year as a White House speech writer, lives in Washington's plush Watergate complex and says he is fascinated by power. "Clearly power is just as great an emotional experience as making love," he said in an interview published in People magazine, "and it might not be as short-term."

McLaughlin, 47, said, "My lifestyle is avant-garde, salaried and autonomous." He said he opposes releasing the White House tapes, an act he compares to "losing your virginity—you reveal one and then how do you stop?" He defends President Nixon's use of profanity as nothing more than "a form of emotional drainage."

McLaughlin said in the interview that he thinks celebrity for priests is "obscure." "I look forward to the day when women can become priests," he said.

His presence on the White House staff and his defense of President Nixon have thrust McLaughlin into controversy. He was summoned to Boston to talk to his religious superior, the Very Rev. Robert T. Cleary, Jesuit provincial of New England for "prayer and reflection."

Saturday, Cleary said McLaughlin will be allowed to keep his job and its earthly trappings as long as he takes time off every year for prayer and reflection.

Cleary said in Boston that he and McLaughlin "talked and reflected together, and individually prayed over these matters raised in recent weeks."

"I have decided with Father McLaughlin that he will fulfill this annual spiritual requirement when his schedule permits."

He added, "Father McLaughlin's work with the government has certain unique aspects which may require a degree of flexibility in his living. I am now satisfied that, although this flexibility is not normative, it is permissible, given his special situation."

McLaughlin would say only that he had been in contact with Father Cleary. "I want to see the privacy of the Jesuit family preserved," he said.

McLaughlin joined the White House staff in 1971 after an unsuccessful race as for the U.S. Senate against Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I.

In the People magazine interview, McLaughlin said, "Even though I work at the White House, I'm available for weddings, baptisms—and exorcisms. I've never performed an exorcism," he said, "but the time could come. I've been inclined to look at the judicial branch."

Set complete now

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Members of Prime Minister Golda Meir's outgoing cabinet chipped in $2 each today to buy her dinnerware place settings for 12 persons for use when she retires to a kibbutz later this week.

An aide said that in her busy political life Mrs. Meir never managed to get a complete set of dinnerware.

Pool fraud probe set

WASHINGTON—(UPI) — Hearings will begin next month into allegations of consumer fraud in the home swimming pool industry, the Federal Trade Commission has announced.

Some of the complaints the agency said will be investigated are:

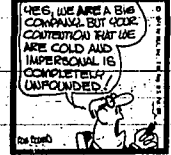

—The luring of customers by "bait and switch" tactics of advertising low priced pools and then telling them they are inadequate or unavailable. Salespersons then talk buyers into higher priced pools.

—False advertising of "special" or "pre-season" prices.

—Limitations on guarantees customers are not told about in advance, including noncoverage for repair of shoddy workmanship.

School bond will aid Jerome

Editor, Times-News: Jerome has just received a most precious gift: passage of a $3.1 million dollar bond issue for a new high school.

This gift will play a major role in helping to make Jerome a better place in which to live for people of all ages for years to come. It will bring about a better educational program for all the school district's students.

This improved education will culminate in better informed Jerome residents of the future who will be the children of today. Through this alone the cost of the new school will be paid for many times over.

Many people deserve considerable praise for passage of the bond issue. The vote was close enough that if any one of these people had failed to do their job, the bond election would have failed.

Special appreciation is in order for the architect selection committee for the new school. Each member of the committee met with the board late into each night for a week listening to presentations from many architectural firms. Their experience as members of this building trade was invaluable.

Example taken

Editor, Times-News:

I have wondered when the working stiff in the Magic Valley will finally realize that the hope of a decent wage and conditions lies in the banding together for one's own cause.

I have seen the advertisements urging the bean growers, the best growers, the potato growers et al, being urged to join their respective and refuse to sell products or services without a decent contract.

Now on the streets of Magic Valley towns we have the likes of the "restaurant owners union" ask in dismay what in the world is happening.

I can tell you what is happening... the workers of the community have taken an example from their employers and have banded together for a common cause.

I for one feel the time is now and past due. ROBERT JOHNSON Twin Falls

Letters

Equal praise is befitting for the publicity committee and the news media. Many people worked seemingly endless hours to bring the need to the public. The Publicity Committee Officers were John T. Stelle III, Noreen Andrus, and Lois Lickley, with many subcommittees under them. Our thanks go to them and their many, many helpers who made it a community wide effort.

LeRoy Craig did an outstanding job in helping with the program. He absorbed himself in the issue until he was a representative of it wherever he went and whatever he did.

In the final days before the election Gayle Forsyth undertook an unbelievable task. A door-to-door campaign to pass out pamphlets and inform people on the bond election had been planned and the task of making this a reality was placed in Gayle's hands. She virtually devoted her entire self to the project and in doing so attracted many people who offered to work. All those who helped her deserve the highest of praise.

Finally, a special thanks is in order for all the yes votes. These votes represented people recognizing the fact we, as Jerome residents, are one, whether we be rich or poor, young or old, parents with children in school or out of school.

A word is also in order for those who voted no. Those who did so are certainly not to be discredited. They exercised their inherent right.

Now it is the responsibility of those who voted yes to see that our new high school fills the needs spoken of — that it brings returns to the community that will give the no voters greater insight into how great the need was for the new high school.

Overeaters can write for help

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You have mentioned an organization called Overeaters Anonymous for compulsive eaters. Can you give me an address to write to? — J.P.

Yes, and it's a new address for that organization: Overeaters Anonymous, Box 2615, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 17 and was told that there wasn't a chance of getting pregnant if I had sexual intercourse during my period or two weeks after.

The person who told me this said that they learned it in a biology class. — T.E.S.V.

With "advice" like that going around, no wonder so many girls are getting pregnant. Pregnancy is unlikely during the period but the two-week bit is dangerous. The closer you get to mid-cycle the greater is the possibility of pregnancy. (C) Field Enterprises, Inc.

Hitching danger

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Highway Patrol estimates that one-half of the hitchhikers victimized by drivers are women, although only one hitchhiker in 10 is female. Most female hitchhikers are the victims of sex crimes.

There's no reason your reason isn't a good one.

The Bank & Trust doesn't think a bank should be run by the book. We think it should be run by people. People who understand they are dealing with individuals, not computer printouts. People who know there are a thousand reasons for borrowing or saving or investing money. People who are willing to listen to your reasons, discuss them with you, and make a decision based on your personal situation, not on some moldy corporate policy.

That's the kind of bank we are. An independent local bank run by independent local people. No matter what financial goal you have in mind, we'll help you reach it. With savings programs tailored to your need and geared to the highest legal return. With trust services designed to protect you and your estate. With loans for just about any worthwhile purpose you can imagine. And, of course, with checking accounts, travelers checks, money orders and correspondent banking, to make your money management more convenient.

Those are all good reasons for doing your banking with the independent one. But the best reason of all is whatever reason you have in mind. That's the one we're interested in.

Colson said key to scandal snag

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Charles W. Colson's plea of guilty to a conspiracy charge Monday because it was "morally right" to do so could untangle a series of scandals swirling around the White House.

In addition, whatever information Colson might be willing to provide prosecutors could bring him before the House Judiciary Committee as a witness in the impeachment probe.

He also may be a prime witness in the Watergate cover-up conspiracy trial of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, and former top presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman as well as in the Ellsberg break-in case in which he was charged.

Jaworski presumably will question the former White House special counsel and former intimate of President Nixon about:

—Former White House Counsel John W. Dean III's Senate testimony that Nixon told him in 1973, on March 13 and April 15, that he had discussed with Colson the matter of executive clemency for one of the original Watergate defendants.

—The alleged link between daily co-operations of $2 million pledge to Nixon's re-election and Nixon's 1971 increase of the price support for raw milk.

Colson, as White House liaison for special interest groups, worked closely with the co-ops. —His involvement in the aftermath of the International Telephone and Telegraph's 1971 antitrust settlement and ITT's promise of up to $400,000 for the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Colson wrote a key memo to Haldeman about Richard G. Kleindienst's testimony in 1972 about ITT. Kleindienst, a former attorney general, pleaded guilty last month to not giving accurate testimony.

Colson and Ehrlichman had been charged with conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, Ellsberg's aide. Colson pleaded guilty to a one-count indictment charging him with obstruction of justice by devising a scheme to discredit Ellsberg and influence his prosecution.

Colson's plea leaves Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser, as the sole major defendant in the Ellsberg trial, and presumably increases "the pressure" on Ehrlichman.

For the case against Ehrlichman, Jaworski now has available the testimony of Colson as well as former White House aides Egli, "Bud" Krogh Jr. and David R. Young.

Colson will be sentenced June 21. He faces a maximum of five years and $5,000. Both he and Krogh may be disbarred.

Coroner retaining portions of bodies

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The coroner's office is keeping pieces of the bodies of the six Symbionese Liberation Army members who died in a gun battle with police and FBI agents May 17.

Coroner Thomas Noguchisaid Monday that when the bodies of the six victims were turned over to their families for burial, his office kept the teeth and fingers, as well as pieces of scalp, brain, lung, liver and flesh.

Noguchi talked to newsmen following complaints from the family of Donald DeFreeze, who called himself "Field Marshal General Clinque." DeFreeze's brother, Delano, said in Cleveland that so much of his brother's body had been removed it was difficult to identify it. The body was also badly damaged by fire following the gunfight.

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON—The House Judiciary Committee's decision last week to put off public, televised hearings for the time being was influenced by Leon Jaworski, the Watergate special prosecutor, according to committee members and officials.

The sources said that Jaworski told John M. Donohue, the committee's special impeachment counsel, that immediate public hearings would create problems for his investigation.

The committee is temporarily turning its attention away from the Watergate case and began closed hearings today on whether impeachable offenses arose from pledges of large 1972 campaign contributions by the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and dairy cooperatives.

According to committee officials, Jaworski talked with Donohue last week about the potential pretrial publicity that would be created if the committee made public all the Watergate evidence that it had heard in secret over the last month.

During the course of that conversation, sources said, Jaworski also said that immediate public hearing would create problems for him.

The officials emphasized Jaworski did not directly ask the committee not to hold public hearings but merely outlined his problems.

Syria plans to restore US tie

DAMASCUS (UPI)—Syria plans to restore full diplomatic relations with the United States, Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam said today.

Khaddam told a news conference that during Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's recent talks with Syrian leaders in Damascus, "the question of restoring relations was discussed and relations will be restored between the United States and Syria."

He did not give a date for the resumption.

President Nixon is expected to visit Damascus during his Middle East tour next week. Khaddam's statement appeared to offer the prospect of resumed relations either before or during the Nixon visit.

diplomatic sources said. Syria, along with the other Arab states, broke off diplomatic relations with the United States during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, on grounds that America was helping Israel.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old granddaughter is pregnant. The boy is a high school kid with no way of supporting himself, let alone a wife and child; so marriage is out of the question. His folks have thrown him out, and a neighbor has taken him in.

My son and daughter-in-law are going to see their daughter through this, and they're keeping the baby. My problem: How should a 75-year-old grandmother act? Should I act like nothing out of the ordinary has happened, and accept the baby as a legitimate great-grandchild? Or should I show my contempt and disgust and turn away? I guess I was born 75 years too soon because I don't seem able to accept this situation.

Grandmother needed

So far I've managed to keep my mouth shut, but I'll have to take a stand soon. I've always had a good relationship with my son and his wife and don't want to spoil it now. Please help me set my thinking straight. GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: If your family ever needed your compassion and understanding, it's now. You can accept the new baby without condoning the unfortunate circumstances. The last thing your granddaughter needs now is a show of "contempt and disgust." [She's suffered enough.]

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you've never run into a problem like mine: I am being married in a formal church wedding. My fiancé and I have known each other for two years, and the only name I've ever known him by is "Beaver." His parents have called him "Beaver" ever since they brought him home from the hospital, and everyone has called him "Beaver" ever since.

His real name is Steven, but hardly anyone knows it. When we say our marriage vows, it will seem so unnatural for me to say: "I, Mona, take thee, Steven," because I've never in all my life called him Steven. But I'm afraid it would sound funny if I were to say: "I, Mona, take thee, Beaver!" So, what do you advise? (MONA)

DEAR MONA: Say: "I, Mona, take thee, Steven." Nicknames are a nuisance in a traditional marriage ceremony.

DEAR ABBY: I don't want to brag, but I would be very good-looking if it weren't for the bags under my eyes. I'm only 27, and I've had these miserable pouches since I was in high school, but they've gotten much more noticeable in the last few years.

I work in a large office and I'm constantly being accused of having been up all night or hung over because I always look so dissipated.

Abby, I get plenty of sleep and I am no big drinker. I'm too young for a face-lift. Can you help me? BAGGY

DEAR BAGGY: My consultants advise me that the condition you describe is called "Blepharochalasis." It's fairly common, and tends to run in families. (Some children have it.)

It's not necessary to have a complete face-lift to get rid of the bags.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FRENCHIE": Please don't call all those escapades "love." Nothing plays a smaller part in pillandering than love. [Credit another Frenchman, La Rochefoucauld with that.]

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 6786, L.A. Calif. 90063. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Book Review

By LUCILLE ROUTH
Twin Falls Public Library
TWIN FALLS — Natalie S. Carlson, the author of "School Bell in the Valley," relates to young readers the experiences of a 10-year-old girl, Belle Mundy, who had come down from the mountains in western Maryland to live with her aunt and uncle after her mother died and her father remarried.

Belle had never been to school; this was the period in our history before compulsory education, so there were no schools back in the mountains. She was happy that there was a schoolhouse in the small village.

The longed-for first day turned out to be a very disappointing one, as she was the victim of children's cruel teasing because she couldn't read or write. She vowed she would never return but would teach herself to read and to write.

Belle sought odd jobs and soon made friends with many of the village people. Her strong determination to help those less fortunate, and not to be a burden to her aunt and uncle, eventually brought many surprising results for them all, but most of all for Belle. She regained her courage to again answer the call of "the school bell in the valley."

This book is to be found in the children's section of the Twin Falls Public Library.

2 youths part of program

SHOSHONE — Two Shoshone youths are participating in the Lawrence Henry Clapson — Scholar program at the College of Idaho.

The two are Kay Saras, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Saras, and Ed Chess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Chess.

The program is open to freshmen at the college who have attained a 3.75 grade point average in high school or scored a 28 on the American College Testing Program composite.

The students need not declare a major. The program for each student must include 124 semester units, a 32-semester unit area of concentration, an upper-level paper or project, and a minimum cumulative grade point average of 3.25.

At the end of the freshman year, the LHG Scholar Board will have met with the students and his adviser to plan a course of study, and will subsequently review the program of each participant at least once a year.

The Atlantic and Pacific herrings are salt water cousins of the skipjack, Ohio and gizzard shad.

Excuses only grounds for 'games married couples play'

(c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO. — They come to the marriage council because of fights over children, money, sex or in-laws. But these grounds are only a smokescreen for the games couples are playing.

Behind most marital disputes is the unconscious, ongoing struggle between the two for domination and personal prestige.

That is the finding of two Chicago psychologists, Gerald M. Mottler and Thomas J. Lottman.

"The most popular game is 'I'm right, you're wrong.' When enacted, before the therapist, it goes something like this:

"Wife: 'He was drunk at the party last night and made a fool of himself.'"
Husband: 'I never make a fool of myself. I simply carried a few jokes.'

"Wife: 'Those off-color jokes you think are so funny.'"
Husband: 'Everyone was laughing. You wouldn't know a good joke if it hit you over the head.'

"Wife: 'I know how to laugh at jokes that are so silly.'"
Husband: (excited voice) 'Silly?'

"Wife: 'You see doctor, isn't it ridiculous the way he won't admit he's wrong?'"
Husband: 'Well you can see how she exaggerates everything, can't you, doctor?'

"The game is a tenacious battle to avoid being proven wrong," explains Mottler, a clinical psychologist in the Hines VA Hospital Mental Hygiene Clinic, and Lottman, a psychologist at Loyola University.

"Even when declared the loser by a third person who is brought in as a referee, whether he is a therapist, relative, child or neighbor, he won't give in. While humiliated, he is ready to start a new game that he can't lose."

"Some of the other games played are:

"Pay attention."
This game is often a one-sided nagging affair. Its purpose is to get a reaction from the other. It is a game of desperation, for being ignored is to a neurotic, oversensitive person — is equivalent to not existing.

If nagging fails to evoke response, the pay-attention player may resort to negative behavior and become so silent the spouse becomes troubled. Or he may adopt habits that annoy the spouse. He tries to whip up a shouting match. "I don't want to discuss it!"

This is the reciprocal of "pay attention." The spouse conveys the name of the game by showing no irritation at the remarks of the other, disassociates himself by closing his eyes, reading a newspaper or leaving the room.

"The demonstration of disdain in this game immediately places the player in a one-up position," says Mottler. "He carries off the idea that he is too mature, too adult, rational or moral to engage in his spouse's game."

"This is war!"
There is nothing subtle in this game. The player attacks, counterattacks and retaliation, a no-holds-barred verbal slugfest whose goal is to hurt the spouse's feelings more than yours are hurt by name-calling, attack family or friends.

"It's all your fault."
The strategy is to strike first to place your partner in a defensive position by blaming the problem on his ineptitude or negligence and conveying the idea that it couldn't remotely be due to any error on your part.

"Where would you be without me?"
It involves reciting a litany of self-sacrifice for one's mate. "I wash your clothes, fix your meals, raise your kids, lie to your boss when you're too hung over to work... or 'If it weren't for me you'd still be...'"

"I've got a debit; you've got a credit."
Husband: "You decided where we went on vacation last year. This year it's my turn."

Wife: "Yeah, but we stayed in the hotel you wanted and played golf whenever you wanted to. When are we going to do what I want?"

Husband: "We ate at all those foreign restaurants because you like spicy food even though I was half sick the whole time."

Wife: "Well, we flew cause you don't like to drive, even though I wanted to see the country."

"The rules," explains Mottler, "are based on a profound distrust between spouses. You always keep tabs of your spouse's activity and never let your spouse know what you are doing."

"Occasionally give in on little matters, to accumulate 'IOUs' for something you really want."

"Where would you be without me?"
It involves reciting a litany of self-sacrifice for one's mate. "I wash your clothes, fix your meals, raise your kids, lie to your boss when you're too hung over to work... or 'If it weren't for me you'd still be...'"

"I've got a debit; you've got a credit."
Husband: "You decided where we went on vacation last year. This year it's my turn."

Wife: "Yeah, but we stayed in the hotel you wanted and played golf whenever you wanted to. When are we going to do what I want?"

Husband: "We ate at all those foreign restaurants because you like spicy food even though I was half sick the whole time."

Wife: "Well, we flew cause you don't like to drive, even though I wanted to see the country."

"The rules," explains Mottler, "are based on a profound distrust between spouses. You always keep tabs of your spouse's activity and never let your spouse know what you are doing."

"Occasionally give in on little matters, to accumulate 'IOUs' for something you really want."

Chicago woman sues Butz

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mrs. Ethel Rosen, irked by high food prices, has sued Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz for $15 billion. Mrs. Rosen, of suburban Wilmette and chairman of Women's War on Prices, filed the suit last month in federal court without the benefit of a lawyer and personally served notice of the suit on Butz when he was in Chicago in May. She is a temporary process server.

"I want to find out just how our country is doing foodwise," Mrs. Rosen said. "We want to clarify the policies of the Agriculture Department."

The suit charges that Butz and the Department of Agriculture "maliciously" advocate sales of American food to foreign countries while their own reports show the production to be down.

It also claims that Butz has made conflicting statements on national food policies, thus damaging consumers and the nation's economic stability.

Mrs. Rosen, who served notice of the suit on Butz when he was preparing to address a meeting of the International Food Distributors, said:

"I went up on the stage where the platform was and I told him I was empowered by the court to serve him. He must have misunderstood and thought I was giving him an award because he took it in hand."

"But when he saw what it was he threw it across the stage."

So far, Mrs. Rosen said, the suit hasn't made much progress because she was required by law to notify the attorney general's office of the suit and must receive an acknowledgment before proceeding further.

"They haven't responded yet," she said. "But I had the post office put a tracer on it."

Lockheed drafts fund plan

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Executives of financially troubled Lockheed Aircraft, biggest U.S. defense contractor, will try Thursday to sell a refinancing plan to the banks that loaned Lockheed $620 million.

The federal government guaranteed repayment of more than a third of the debt.

Lockheed Monday announced a tentative agreement whereby

Texttron Inc., a giant conglomerate based in Providence, R.I., will invest $85 million in Lockheed.

Texttron would wind up owning about 45 per cent of Lockheed's stock under the plan, and the chairman of Texttron's board would become chairman of Lockheed's board, but the two firms would not merge and would continue as separate corporations, the announcement said.

The plan is subject to a number of conditions, including approval by many other parties: the federal government, Lockheed's creditor banks and the stockholders of both corporations.

Lockheed executives are to meet in New York Thursday with representatives of the 24-bank consortium to secure their approval.

Part of the motivation behind the refinancing is to reduce the interest Lockheed pays, which amounted to almost $70 million last year.

Lockheed was rescued from bankruptcy three years ago by a $250 million federal loan guarantee. Lockheed was plunged into crisis due to business problems developing in Lockheed's Tristar jet liner, including the bankruptcy of England's Rolls Royce, manufacturer of the plane's engines. Its creditor banks would lend the corporation no more money unless the federal government guaranteed they would be repaid. Congress agreed to the administration's request for the guarantee only after a heated battle over "corporate welfare."

Lockheed has drawn $220 million so far from the federally backed fund.

Calm down about 'Gate,' Barry says

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Monday said people are going to have to calm down on the Watergate-related questions surrounding President Nixon.

"We've had our fun now finding hell about this, and saying he should do this and he should do that," Goldwater told of non-partisan audience of more than 400.

He was one of 95 persons, most of them West Virginians, who were presented whimsical diplomas from the "University of Hard Knocks," an organization founded by Jim Cornsack, editor of the West Virginia Hillbilly, a weekly newspaper.

"It has reached the stage where people are going to have to calm down and take a look at this," Goldwater said, without ever mentioning Watergate or Nixon by name.

"Some day this is going to maybe rest in the lap of the Senate. We will be assembled as a jury to hear the evidence. Noting the pressures being applied by Republicans to take stand one way or the other," U.S. President, Goldwater said, "if you think the Democratic party was divided over George Wallace, you ought to hear my paky over this thing."

Gardner charges US unresponsive to need

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Common Cause chairman John Gardner accused the "Nixon administration and the Democratic Congress today of remaining 'totally unresponsive' to the need for political reform in the wake of Watergate."

The former Health, Education and Welfare Department secretary, now head of a nonpartisan citizens' action group with more than 300,000 members, praised "a wave of reform" in the states during an appearance before the National Governors Conference.

But, Gardner said in prepared remarks, "the response to that question from the federal level has been discouraging in the extreme. The executive branch has been totally unresponsive, and the Congress almost equally so."

Members of the House and those senators who are running for reelection this year will come before the voters almost empty handed. When the citizen asks, 'What did you do to prevent future Watergates? What did you do to give us open and accountable government?' most members of Congress will have to say, 'If they're honest, we did as little as we could get away with.'"

Gardner said eight states still were "backward" in dealing with abuses of money and secrecy—and in an action more in the political atmosphere of governors' gatherings, called their names.

Gardner appeared on a panel with Republican Govs. William Milliken of Michigan and Democrats Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin and Reubin Askew of Florida and television panel moderator Lawrence Spivak.

Milliken and Lucey sponsored a formal resolution for presentation at Wednesday's closing conference session calling on "all levels of government" to "clean up campaign finances, lobbyist control and require financial disclosure by public officials and open government meetings."

The financial disclosure issue was somewhat delicate in Washington state, where the voters overwhelmingly approved a law in 1972 requiring officials to make their finances public.

Since then, there have been repeated charges that the new law—one of the strongest in the nation—was driving prospective candidates away from the political arena and government service. Privately, public officials in many other states have been using Washington state as an example of how reform can work against better government.

But Gardner gave no indication that Common Cause, which was instrumental in the Washington reform vote, had slackened its enthusiasm for financial disclosure, public financing of political campaigns—also highly controversial—lobbying controls or "sunshine" laws to prohibit official secrecy.

Praising the state, Gardner said "at least 40" have enacted significant statutes in the last 18 months dealing with abuses of money and secrecy in government. While not all new laws are models, he said, "on the whole it is a record of sincere, constructive achievement."

But, he said, legislatures in Delaware, Illinois, Michigan, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Virginia had failed to act on reform, even though some of their governors, including Milliken and Daniel Walker of Illinois, had put pressure on state lawmakers to act.

Gritty puzzle

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — At the breakfast buffet line at the national governors' conference Monday, 10 waitresses stood staring at a dish they weren't familiar with.

"What is that stuff?" one asked, perplexed.

"I don't know. It looks like farina," another replied.

Finally, a knowledgeable waitress solved the mystery.

"It's grits," she said. "And you can't run a national convention without 'em."

Seattle is about as far away from the Mason-Dixon line as you can get in the continental United States.

Agnew repaying US

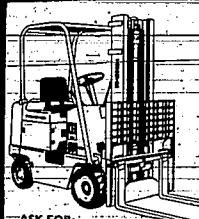

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew has quietly agreed to repay the government $100 for the $115,000 worth of improvements made to his home at public expense when he was vice president.

A congressman showed UPI a copy of the agreement signed April 11 by Agnew and disclosed that government officials are investigating whether Agnew should also rebate part of the reported $300,000 he made on the sale of the home.

"I think he's entitled to every dime that resulted from the inflated real estate market," Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said.

Agnew, who resigned last fall after pleading no contest to an income tax evasion charge, bought the suburban Bethesda, Md., home for $130,000 and sold it 15 months later—with most of the improvements intact—for a reported $300,000.

Supreme Court upholds equal women's pay rule

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court upheld Monday the 10-year-old Congressional mandate that employers pay women equal wages for equal work.

Dividing 5 to 3, the high court ruled female workers are entitled to the same wage scales as men with the same sort of job, whether or not the men work different shifts or claim special privileges predating the Equal Pay Act that went into effect in 1964.

The decision is expected to cost the Corning Glass Works at least $600,000 in back pay to women who have been receiving arbitrarily low wages in at least three of the company's plants.

Nationally, the principle endorsed by the Supreme Court will almost certainly eventually require employers to pay women millions of dollars a year more, raising their wage levels either voluntarily or under court order to an equivalent scale with their male counterparts.

Advocates of equal rights for women are convinced that the federal law has been widely ignored and delayed since its enactment through leaving intact practices, originally legal, that tended to let only men into higher paying jobs.

Writing for the majority, Associate Justice Thurgood Marshall said it was not enough for an employer to make women eligible for higher paying jobs involving the same duties performed by men. Women doing the same work as men must be given the same pay as men, he said.

Before the high court were two virtually identical cases objecting to the glass company's practice of paying night inspectors, all of them originally men, higher wages than were paid to day inspectors, all of whom were women. A federal district court in New York ruled in favor of the labor department which brought complaints against two Corning plants. The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit affirmed the decision. But in Pennsylvania, where Corning has a plant in Wellsboro, the company's wage differential was upheld both in federal district court and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Dissenting from the ruling were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Associate Justices Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist. Associate Justice Potter Stewart did not participate in the case.

The dissenters did not write an opinion but merely elaborated the reasoning of the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, which held that night and day shifts involved different "working conditions" for which different wages could properly be paid.

Two areas in which the decision is expected to have major impact are the retail sales industry and hospital and medical services, in which women have traditionally occupied most of the lower paying positions and few of the higher.

Rabin takes Israel post

(C) New York Times Service
JERUSALEM — Yitzhak Rabin became Israel's fifth premier Monday after his coalition government won parliamentary approval by a narrow majority.

The vote, after seven hours of debate, was 61 to 51 with five abstentions.

In his first major policy address, Rabin outlined a program strikingly similar in foreign and domestic policies to that of the outgoing premier, Golda Meir. He said Israel was prepared to negotiate peace with her Arab neighbors in stages, beginning with Egypt, but would not negotiate with the Palestinian guerrilla organizations at Geneva or elsewhere.

Although the policies he outlined were familiar, Rabin struck a different tone from his predecessor in his remarks.

"Something has happened to this country since the Yom Kippur war," he said. "Even though we scored one of our greatest victories in that war, many of us have deeply troubled hearts."

"We must shake off our dependency," he said. "His voice rising, 'If we look about us we will see that we are not in the vale of tears. Our cause is just, our strength has increased, our full rights and our spiritual vigor have not lost their momentum. We must reinforce our self-confidence, and fully restore our faith in ourselves.'"

When the confidence vote had been counted, the 52-year-old former chief of staff and ambassador to Washington stepped forward to sign his pledge of office and hand it to the speaker of the parliament, Yisrael Yeshayahu. With that act, he became Israel's youngest and first son, or native-born premier, succeeding David Ben-Gurion, Moshe Sharett, Levi Eshkol and Golda Meir.

Rabin's installation brings to an end a period of political turmoil in Israel that began Dec. 31, when the Labor Party won a narrow plurality in national elections.

Mrs. Meir managed to form a government but was forced to resign on April 11. Rabin won the party's nomination to succeed her on April 22, but needed six weeks to put together a workable new coalition.

It is composed of the Labor Party, the Independent Liberal Party and the newly created Civil Rights Movement and has 61 seats in the 120-seat parliament.

Of the 51 Labor Party members, only one abstained in tonight's voting. He was Mordechai Ben Porat, a close associate of Dayan's, who has denounced the Rabin government as too dovish in foreign policy matters. He is expected to resign his seat shortly.

On other issues, Rabin stressed the importance of maintaining Israel's close relations with the United States. He also called on the Soviet Union to implement the spirit of detente in the Middle East and change its policy towards Israel.

Rabin repeated the outgoing government's pledge that Israel would not return to her pre-June 1967 borders. "Even within the context of a peace treaty,"

Annual Methodist meet starts today in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — Representatives of nearly 200 United Methodist churches in Oregon and Southern Idaho are arriving in Boise for their annual conference which begins with a dinner tonight.

Bishop Jack M. Tuell, Portland, head of the church in the two-state area, will give his "state of the church" message to the dinner meeting. All sessions of the conference are open to the public. Most will be held in the First Christian Church adjacent to the Boise State University campus.

Some evening sessions and the concluding Sunday morning service will be the first United Methodist Cathedral.

At the first business session Wednesday morning, the conference will elect members of boards and councils which are set up under a new organizational structure approved by the 1973 conference but effective only this year.

Worship services will be held each morning with Dr. Glenn A. Olds, president of Kent State University in Ohio, the speaker on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

At the Wednesday morning session the speaker will be the Rev. Raymond G. Bainor, Seattle, who describes himself as an ombudsman for the American Indians.

Idaho site eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Any future meeting that discusses water or diversion of the Snake River should be held in Idaho, H. M. Hanson, a Democratic candidate for Congress from the second district, said Monday.

"I don't know whose eyes they think they're pulling the wool over by having this meeting out of state," Hanson said, referring to a meeting in Denver Monday of the Water Resources Council.

"But any future meeting that discusses Idaho water or the diversion of the Snake River should be held in Idaho."

"I would expect that the full results of this Colorado meeting, where they will be discussing the possible diversion of the Snake River, would be published in Idaho newspapers."

"We have a right to know what those guys are up to," he said as a farmer and a taxpayer in the progressive irrigation district of Idaho Falls he does not want anybody monkeying with his headgate.

"And as a water user on the Snake River I don't want anybody monkeying with Idaho's headgates."

Vote prohibits water diversion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Interior Committee voted Monday to prohibit diversion of water from the Northwest to replace water from the Colorado River

Frank Church, who is chairman of the Interior Subcommittee on Water and Power Resources.

Church offered his amendment to a bill authorizing several means of salinity control within the Colorado River Basin.

The legislation, which was proposed to carry out a recent agreement with Mexico, requires that the United States remove drain waters with excess salt from the Colorado.

As amended on the motion of Church, the bill now will require that any replacement water must come from within the Colorado River Basin states, thus effectively prohibiting any effort to divert water from the Northwest.

Church said today's action is a reaffirmation of the fact that Idaho water is not available for use in California and the Southwest. He added that the amendment should also serve notice to the Nixon administration that the Interior Committee will not tolerate new initiatives to divert Northwest water.

Gem water board positions filled

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has filled two water-related posts, his office announced Monday.

M. Reed Hansen of Idaho Falls has been named to the Idaho Water Resource Board to fill the vacancy created by the death of Ferris Kunz, Montpelier, who served jointly on the Idaho Water Resource Board and the Bear River Compact Commission.

Andrus appointed Clifford J. Skinner, Dingle, to serve the remaining portion of Kunz's term on the commission.

Hansen is an Idaho native who operates an irrigated potato farm. A Republican, he attended the University of Idaho College of Agriculture. He is a brother of U.S. Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho.

Skinner has long been active in the agricultural field, operating an irrigated farm close to the Bear River.

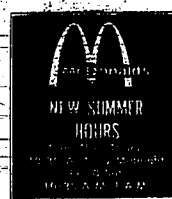

Agreement reached on labor contract

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise Cascade Co. and members of the Association of Western Paper and Paper Workers reached an agreement on a two-year labor contract covering four paper mills in the Pacific Northwest.

The company said Monday the contract calls for a wage increase of 10 per cent the first year and 10.5 per cent the second year, plus improved fringe benefits.

The new contract sent workers idle since May 6 back to work at the company's mills at St. Helens and Salem, Ore., and Vancouver and Wallula, Wash.

B-C said together they represent approximately one-third of the company's total paper-making capacity.

July hearing date set

OGDEN (UPI) — Keith Leon Roberts, one of three Hill Air Force Base airmen charged with the slayings of three persons during the 1971 ship robbery, faces preliminary hearing July 9.

City Judge E.F. Ziegler set the date Monday for Roberts, 21, Lawton, Okla., charged with the first-degree murder of Sherry Michelle Ansley, 18, and Stanley O. Walker, 20, both Hill Air Force Base airmen, and Mrs. Byron Nalsbitt, 52, all of Ogden.

The victims, and two other persons who survived, were killed during the ship robbery in the fluid before being shot in the head. Miss Ansley was raped.

Also charged with first-degree murder in the April 22 incident were Dale S. Pierce, 21, Trinidad, West Indies, and William A.

4 senators join forces on issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho's Washington senators introduced legislation to authorize at federal expense the construction of a second bridge spanning the Snake River between Lewiston and Clarkston.

The legislation was introduced by Sens. Frank Church and James McClure of Idaho and Warren Magnuson and Henry Jackson of Washington.

introduced the bill as a working paper to serve as the basis for further consideration of the issue by the highway departments of the two states and officials and citizens of the Lewiston and Clarkston area.

The bill would authorize federal construction of a four-lane, lift suspension highway bridge and approaches connecting Lewiston and Clarkston, approximately two miles upstream from the present U.S. Highway 12 bridges.

The senators noted that the present bridge is inadequate for present needs. They said the bridge takes as much as 20 to 25 minutes to raise and lower, which would cause considerable traffic congestion including emergency traffic.

Bargain time

POCATELLO (UPI) — Negotiations between Pocatello School District 25 and teacher representatives continued Monday with little progress reported.

School officials said the good thing is that both sides are continuing to bargain.

Spraying plans delayed

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Saying "the bugs aren't out yet," the Forest Service delayed plans to begin spraying Pacific Northwest timberlands for tussock moths until next week.

The spraying program with the controversial chemical insecticide DDT was set for Thursday. Monday the service said it will begin spraying in Idaho, Oregon and Washington, June 10.

"The bugs just haven't come out yet," a regional forester said. The larvae of the moths attack evergreen trees, and have defoliated large stands of timberland.

The Forest Service had said it would try to begin the DDT spray program between June 5 and 10. The date was dependent on when the moths eggs begin to hatch.

Showing halted

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — An injunction was issued here Monday halting the showing of the movie film "Last Tango in Paris."

The city served the temporary injunction against Carroll Cinema Operator Darwin Vest prohibiting the showing of the film.

District Judge Willard Burton signed the injunction, saying that the injunction prevents showing of the film until a jury trial determines so-called community standards and objections granted Idaho cities under state obscenity laws.

The trial has been set for June 17 before Judge Boyd Thomas.

Vest said that he and the Carroll Cinema plan to file a counter suit to "resolve the matter of action against R and X rated movies once and for all."

The city closed down showing of the film after one showing a week ago. A second attempt was stopped by threat of an injunction and after Monday's attempt the injunction became a reality.

Boise man seeks post

BOISE (UPI) — Steven Guerber of Boise announced Monday he would seek the Democratic nomination for the state senate from legislative District 16.

Guerber is currently director of the information services division of the Jim Hawkes Co., a Boise advertising-public relations firm.

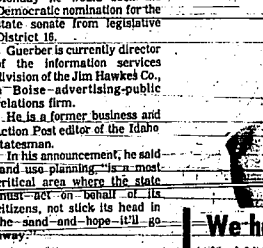

He is a former business and Action Post editor of the Idaho Statesman.

In his announcement, he said land use planning "is a most critical area where the state must act on behalf of its citizens, not stick its head in the sand and hope it'll go away."

Foreign steak buyers may draw some relief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Skyrocketing world food costs boosted the price of a pound of boneless sirloin steak to $14.70 in Tokyo between March and May, but the U.S. Agriculture Department said relief is finally in sight for foreign consumers.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) compared prices of 14 items in 14 world capitals and found median prices for 10 of the items rose between March and May. Only the prices of boneless chuck roast and eggs were cheaper, and white bread and onions remained unchanged.

According to the survey, the median price of boneless sirloin — the cost in 30 per cent of the cities surveyed — rose from $2.41 a pound in March to a record $2.70 in early May. But steak prices in Tokyo leaped by $1.30 — from $10.51 a pound in March to $14.70 in May.

There was better news however. Other FAS data showed increases food prices in several major economies have been smaller than inflationary gains for other products.

"In general, many of the factors that led to higher prices last year are less likely to dominate the market this year," Agriculture officials said. They added that big crops in many major producing countries should improve the outlook.

In other world capitals, the price of sirloin steak remained at the government-controlled 69 cents a pound in Buenos Aires, but officials said many price-controlled meat items were not available in local supermarkets.

Sirloin in Washington rose from $2.29 in March to $2.59 a pound in May despite generally lower U.S. beef prices.

A pound of bacon in Brasilia cost $4.09 in May compared with 94 cents in Washington, but Brazilians paid only $1.14 a pound for boneless sirloin compared with $2.38 in Paris, $2.59 in Washington and $4.19 in Stockholm.

TF lamb pool set

TWIN FALLS — The next Twin Falls County Livestock Marketing Association lamb pool will be June 10.

Lyn Merrick, secretary, said the pool will be at the Twin Falls Livestock Commission Co. Lambs will be marked Thursday in Jerome County and Friday in Twin Falls County. Persons having lambs to be marked may call the extension office in Twin Falls or Jerome, he said.

Merrick said no date has been set for loading the Twin Falls County wool pool for $0.26 cents per pound to the North Central Marketing Association in early May. Growers participating will be advised of the time and place for loading when arrangements are made, he said.

American company plans sake output

TOKYO (UPI) — An American wine company hopes to begin producing Japanese sake at Hollister, Calif., during the next three to four years, a Japanese industrial newspaper said Monday.

The newspaper-Nikkei Sangyo identified the firm as San Benito Vineyards-Cor., a medium-sized maker of fruit wines with sales of $5,000 cases last year.

The paper said representatives of the California firm are in Tokyo seeking a tieup with a Japanese distiller, in order to acquire "sake-making technology."

It said San Benito vineyards plans to use California rice for its sake brewing, and probably will bring Japanese technicians to the United States to get the plant in operation.

Nikkei Sangyo said the American demand for sake is growing rapidly, especially in California and New York where substantial numbers of Japanese live. Another American firm already is in the sake business in Hawaii. The paper said executives of the California wine firm believe that taste in the United States is shifting toward wines of high alcoholic content.

It hopes to retail the sake through grocery stores specializing in Japanese foods. Japanese sake brewers have been limited in their exports to the United States by high tariffs.

Although commonly called "rice wine," sake is classified by liquor experts as a type of beer. It is filtered-clear before sale, and usually is drunk hot. It has been made in Japan since prehistoric times.

Few blacks going south

By BERNARD BRENNER, UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few successful blacks who earned good pensions in the urban North and West are beginning to trickle back to the rural South where they left decades ago, an Agriculture Department population specialist says.

But so far, said David L. Brown, census figures show only faint signs of this movement of blacks "who have made it in the city and are retiring to the country, often back home."

But Brown thinks the movement will continue.

"The South is definitely going to see a gradual return of successful blacks to rural areas, just as the national trend is toward more people staying in or returning to the countryside," Brown said in an article published by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

The back-to-the-country move will not, however, be as great in this decade among blacks as among whites, Brown added. And he said it would fall far short of offsetting the heavy tide of blacks leaving the rural south during the past 20 years.

"Over the past two decades, nearly 3 million blacks — mostly young — have left the rural south on a net basis. The main reason was the lack of jobs," Brown explained. He said black employment on farms dwindled sharply as cotton and peanut production were mechanized and tobacco began to follow the same trend.

For whites, the loss of farm jobs was offset in recent years by rapid growth in nonagricultural employment in the rural South. But for blacks there were either few such opportunities or they were not attractive enough to outweigh the lure of a potential better life in places like Chicago, Los Angeles and New York, Brown said.

During the 1950's, Brown's article said, nearly 3 million whites and about 1.5 million blacks left the south's small towns in rural areas. In the 1960's, with growing job openings for whites in new rural nonfarm jobs, only 123,000 white people left the rural South on a net basis compared to 1.3 million blacks.

A study of four rural farm counties underlined the trend.

In predominantly-black Wilcox County, Ala., which Brown described a typical, black employment in agriculture dropped 80 per cent during the 1960's while nonagricultural employment for blacks declined 35 per cent.

Oranges' costs up sharply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect a sharp increase in orange prices beginning late this year and lasting at least until the late 1970's, Agriculture Department economists warned today.

Experts said they based their warning on a study showing that per capita supplies of both fresh and processed orange products will drop in the 1974-75 harvest season and may not climb back to current levels until the 1979-80 season.

With demand for frozen orange concentrate growing steadily, officials said, the declining supply means shoppers had better brace themselves for "significant increases" in prices.

A report published by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service (ERS) traced the coming dip in supply to low prices in the late 1960's. With production then running ahead of consumer demand, growers found their profits lower, and there was a corresponding slowdown in planting of new orange trees, especially in Florida, the report said.

"By 1980, however, Florida's acreage of bearing trees should be back to the high levels of 1970-71," the report added.

Spuds off

NEW YORK — Maine potato futures were depressed sharply Monday.

Commodity News Service said the market posted losses of 20 to 45 points on volume of 1,628 carlots. The market fell under pressure of trade and commission house sales, with May contracts feeling the greatest pressure. Good planting progress was reported in both Maine and the Red River valley.

'Beef sausage' fat rules into effect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal regulation limiting the amount of fat in products, eligible to carry the name "beef sausage," will be put into effect July 29, three and a half years after it was originally announced, the Agriculture Department said today.

Under the long-delayed regulation, beef sausages may not contain more than 30 per cent fat. The same limit used for hamburger. Officials said activation of the rule for sausage had been delayed by appeals by meat processors and by consideration of an industry petition to raise the fat ceiling to 50 per cent.

Spokesmen said the 50 per cent proposal was rejected because "this would have permitted the term 'beef sausage' to be used on packages of extremely fatty ground beef which otherwise should be identified as imitation hamburger." Anyway, officials added, processors who want to make a sausagelike ground beef with more than 30 per cent fat can continue to do so under the new rules.

They will not be permitted to label with fatty products "beef sausage," but they will be permitted to use the term "breakfast sausage."

This wording is allowable, experts explained, because many consumers associate the words "breakfast sausage" with products containing a substantial amount of fat.

Agriculture officials said they were announcing their intention to enforce the 30 per cent fat limit on beef sausage with a 60-day lead time in order to give processors time to adjust their production formulas.

Cattle futures mixed

CHICAGO — Live cattle futures closed mixed Monday.

Commodity News Service said a brisk start covering rally late in the session, spurred by scattered shorts, taking profits brought futures back from new session lows.

The rally pulled August off limit down levels and October up $1.20 from an near-limit loss. Final quotes were higher in the deferred options while June and August were lower with prices in a range from down 35 cents in August to 57 cents higher in thinly traded April.

The day saw 11,667 contracts traded. Prices opened 50 cents to 80 cents lower under pressure from heavy market receipts showing an overrun of 2,000 slaughter steers plus heavier hog marketings than expected.

Some observers said the strong close could be considered a technical recovery after two sessions of heavy losses and two weeks of downside prices which resulted in losses of over $5 in August and October.

California authorities recaptured King May 24 and picked up Pope last Saturday.

Hansen speaks in Burley

BURLEY (UPI)—Congressman Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said Monday that if America was to keep the peace "it is essential that we negotiate from a position of strength rather than weakness."

He told a meeting of Idaho World War I veterans here "the best way to maintain world peace is for America to demonstrate that it has the ability and the will to defend itself."

Andrus asks release

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has officially requested release of the Regional Forest Service recommendation on wilderness classification of the Idaho Primitive area.
"The public has a right to know whether the final position presented to Congress for approval is the result of a genuine study and public testimony or the arbitrary designs of federal bureaucrats 2,000 miles away," Andrus wrote regional foresters Vern Hamre, Ogden, Utah.

Church seeks help

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is seeking the help of Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton to have the former Indian Hills desert entry project near Hammett turned over to the state.
Gov. Cecil D. Andrus had asked help from Church after the Bureau of Land Management objected to the governor's proposal to have the land turned over to Idaho.
Indian Hills was developed several years ago under the Desert Land Act, but the entries were challenged and the federal courts ultimately ruled the land was developed fraudulently and should be returned to the government.

Flooding insurance rules unmet in MV

TWIN FALLS—More than a dozen Magic Valley counties and cities have not qualified for new federally-subsidized flood insurance, according to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The counties and cities must adopt a building permit system for new construction, undertake "minimal" land use measures in flood-prone areas and submit applications to the federal government to qualify for low insurance rates offered under the new program.

Since individuals cannot purchase a flood insurance policy under the program until they have met the city/county criteria, owners of property located in identified flood-prone areas that are not qualified would be ineligible for Federal Housing Administration or Veterans Administration mortgages, loans from the Small Business Administration, or loans from federally regulated or supervised banks and savings and loan institutions.
Then-qualified Magic Valley areas, as of April 1, are Cassia County and four of its cities: Albion, Burley, Declo and Oakley; four Blaine County cities: Bellevue, Hiale, Ketchum and Sun Valley; Twin Falls City; Paul; Eden and Jerome in Jerome County; Gooding City; Glenna Ferry; Fairfield and Shoshone.
All flood-prone areas must be in the new program by July 1, 1975, or lose federal approval of any financial assistance for acquisition or construction in the regions.

Rezoning draws no objections

TWIN FALLS—No objections were registered Monday at a public hearing on a rezoning request for about 80 acres east of Twin Falls.

A Twin Falls real estate firm, Globe Realty, has asked for rezoning changes to allow commercial and residential developments northwest of Tolman Corner.

If approved, the rezoning would permit commercial uses on about 40 acres and medium-density residential uses on another 40 acres.

About 60 acres of the parcel currently are zoned for agricultural purposes. The remaining 20 acres already have a commercial designation.

The Twin Falls County commissioners, following the hearing Monday, voted to make a final decision on Globe Realty's request Tuesday at 11 a.m.

The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended denial of the zone changes.

The county commissioners Monday also delayed decisions on two other rezoning requests. No one appeared to testify at public hearings on the applications.

Claude Thomas has asked for a zone change from residential medium-density to commercial for a small parcel south of the Twin Falls Labor Camp on Highway 74.

Lee Monroe has asked that a parcel south of Burley be rezoned from agricultural to residential medium to permit a trailer park. The area is one mile south of the southwest corner of Buhl.

The county commissioners said they would announce final decisions on the rezoning Friday morning.
County zoners recommended denial of zone changes.

Sheriff urges control on gatherings

TWIN FALLS—County Commission Chairman William Chancey said today Sheriff Paul Corder has asked the Commission to do whatever possible to prevent large gatherings in areas where traffic problems will result.

He said Corder met briefly with the commission Monday following a rock festival which tied up traffic in the Dierkes Lake and Shoshone Falls area. Corder said if an accident or drowning had occurred in the river it would have been impossible to get an emergency vehicle or ambulance to the scene.

Chancey said the commissioners were considering changing the county's ordinance to give closer regulation of such gatherings.
"This might come out, but there's nothing definite yet," he said.

The Sunday event resulted in a traffic jam more than a mile in length and several hours duration.

The sheriff said the pending Evel-Knievel jump will present even worse problems and some arrangement must be made in advance. He suggested a meeting with city and county officials to discuss a cooperative effort. Chancey said such a meeting may be arranged in the future.

He also suggested amending the county ordinance to give control over large gatherings of less than 18 hours duration. The present ordinance, Chancey said, prohibits such gatherings extending more than 18 hours in length.

Dierkes Lake and Shoshone Falls Park are city property but are located in the county and under county law enforcement jurisdiction.

But an organizer of the Dierkes Lake concert disagreed Tuesday with city and county officials' descriptions of the event and leveled a few complaints of her own.

Rozanne Evans said she had warned Twin Falls City Police Chief Frank Barnett that the concert could present a traffic problem but he told her the department was "only worried about narcotics."

Barnett refused to take precautions to avoid the traffic jam that slowed traffic to an agonizing crawl on the Shoshone Falls grade Sunday and blocked several private drives in the area, she said.

The parks department told the organizers that trash cans would be set up at the site to handle the trash from the hundreds of concert-goers, but no additional trash cans had been supplied, she said. With the help of people attending the concert, the trash had been cleaned up at the site, she said.

The city had promised a water truck to supply drinking water, according to Miss Evans, but though the truck arrived, no one knew how to run it. The only water coming from the truck was leaking through a crack in the tank, she said.

However, Miss Evans said, "everything worked out just fine." Continuous music was presented from about 1 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. only breaking to change bands, she said, and the crowd was orderly.

Miss Evans and Lee Halper, who helped organize the event, plan to meet with city manager Jean Milar Tuesday afternoon to discuss plans for another concert they hope to schedule for July 4. To alleviate the traffic problem at the second concert she said, the organizers hope to use parking areas at the Twin Falls High School, College of Southern Idaho and provide buses—every half-hour—to carry concert-goers to the site.

"Milar on the whole has been very good to us," she said, and supported the organizers efforts.

Woodside limits off

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY—Sanitary restrictions imposed in April on the Woodside Building Complex were lifted Monday afternoon allowing first phase construction to begin.

The district health department signed the release after the Department of Environmental and Community Services recommended restriction removal on plots 1-3 and a portion of plot 18.

George Wagner, district DECS engineer, said the city of Hailey had agreed to supply water to those plots until Woodside could develop its own water system.

Two general contractors were stopped from building in April this year on Woodside because DECS had not approved sewer and water plans for the 640-acre complex.

The conditional DECS approval came after several plan rejections beginning in August, 1973. DECS has specified Woodside must supply additional ground within the city for expansion or relocation of the drain field should it malfunction.

Woodside must also show accurate capability data on the plan operation before restrictions are lifted on the rest of the project.

The plots approved will be used for condominium construction, single family dwellings and a tennis complex. Horace Self, project manager, said three indoor tennis courts and four outdoor courts are scheduled for completion this year.

SV projects shut down

SUN VALLEY—Two Sun Valley construction projects are shut down while two remain working during a statewide craftsmen strike.

Work on the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities and the Wildlife Condominiums is being delayed about 80 days because of the construction while 20 workers sit idle waiting to go to work on the center.

Workers are picketing quietly at both sites. It will take several weeks, according to Dean Ambal, Wildlife project manager, to officially get the project working again after contracts are signed.

The center for the arts and humanities has scheduled 14 photography workshops involving 100 people. The construction halt on a new photography building that is needed to house the students has him worried, Jim Seaton said.

Two other area projects are continuing under agreement to retroactively supply any contract which may be accepted by the union. They are the Boise Cascade Corp. job on 100 units at the Elkhorn Valley Ranch and the Idaho Power turbine generator north of Hailey.

Laborers there are working under the International Contractor's Union. They have no vocal bargaining power at negotiations but must go to work at wages bargained by the local union.

Workers on the Wildlife and arts and humanities projects must accept the statewide agreement to strike under the Associated General Contractor's Union.

High rise Cascade condominium models would be built at a Pocatello plant in June and delivered in mid-July.

Jerome man identified

Sheriff Hall estimated the vehicle was traveling about 70 miles per hour on a gravel county road when it failed to negotiate a curve, skidded 14 feet as the driver "froze on the brakes."

Sheriff Hall said the vehicle hit the bridge with the vehicle half on and half off the structure, struck the bank and flipped back into the canal.

Doug Schelling, a farmer who resides near the canal, was milking cows when he heard the crash. He told officers he called to see if anyone was in the vehicle and received an answer from the occupant. He went to get his tractor and a cable to recover the vehicle but when he returned the vehicle had been swept under the bridge.

Sheriff Hall said Skaggs was dead when the vehicle was pulled from the water. He said the man drowned rather than succumbed to accident injuries.

At 5:05 a.m. the Twin Falls sheriff's office received a call saying Skaggs and his girlfriend were having difficulties and she was afraid he might hurt himself. She told officers he was in his automobile and might be in the vicinity of the mobile court where she lives. Twin Falls County officers were unable to locate him.

Burley eyes air service

BURLEY—Sun Valley Key Air Lines, Salt Lake City, may provide air service for Burley. "A lot of wheels are turning" in bringing air service to Burley, according to Bud Bringer, Burley City Clerk.

Air service to and from Burley stopped Friday when Air Idaho withdrew service from the Burley Municipal Airport.

Bringer said, "We need air service in here." Sun Valley Key representatives will meet with Bringer and Burley residents June 19 in a luncheon meeting at Price's Cafe. Burley residents are expected to support the air service plan, Bringer said.

Air Idaho officials said prior to withdrawing air service last week that traffic volume was insufficient for continuance of the service.

Sun Valley Key officials have told the Burley City Council that they are interested in providing passenger and freight service from Burley to larger metropolitan areas, such as Salt Lake City and Boise.

PAUL—This year's service to humanity award for special education at West Minico Junior High School went to a ninth grader from Heyburn.

Colleen Stuart, 15, was chosen from about 20 teacher's aides in the West-Minico special education program to receive the annual award for exceptional service.

The award was presented by the teacher who heads the program, George McDonald, and principal Earl Carlson. This was the third year the award has been made to the top teacher's aide. Miss Stuart received a certificate and a trophy case. She has participated in the program for the last two years.

Students are chosen to help with special education from all three grades in the school. "Every kid has to have special qualities to work with the program," McDonald said. These include exceptional patience and tolerance, according to McDonald.

CSI classes under way

TWIN FALLS—Academic classes at the College of Southern Idaho began summer sessions Monday with about 25 per cent more enrollment than at this point last year.

Jerry Meyerhoffer, CSI, said more enrollment will be coming in throughout June for the classes beginning July 1. He said last year about 340 academic students enrolled for the entire summer and present indications are this figure will be surpassed by about 50 students.

Vocational classes, he said, have been underway for some time but he has no figures on recent enrollment. Last year 149 vocational students enrolled and this, too, is expected to be surpassed.

A new summer school attraction this year, Meyerhoffer said, is the self-taught feature which enables an instructor to handle a larger number of students in history, social studies and other reading-type classes. In these the student is given a tape of the class subject matter and allowed to work at his own time and speed on the various subjects.

George Staudacher said summer school in the Twin Falls school district is also underway. High School classes, scheduled to run 60 hours, began last week on Tuesday with a good-sized enrollment, he said.

Grade-school summer programs began at Morningstar on Thursday and also with a good enrollment of about 300 students in kindergarten through sixth grade.

A migrant program will begin Wednesday at Bickel School and thus far about 125 migrant children from babies for the nursery school through teenagers are anticipated.

Teachers who will work in the migrant program are attending workshops today and Tuesday at Bickel School, Staudacher said.

TF council approves bid

TWIN FALLS—City Council members Monday night approved the third and final bid for the proposed sewage treatment plant and accepted a bid for sidewalk construction.

Wisconsin Waldner Co. was awarded a bid of $157,483 for division 2 and 2A contracts for the $5 million secondary sewage treatment plant in Twin Falls.

City Manager Jean Milar told the City Council that the bid for division 2 and 2A resulted in the lowest bid from Wisconsin Waldner Co., although another firm was slightly lower on the Division 2 portion only.

This portion of the project is a n' control and monitor system. Earlier the city awarded a $4.6 million bid to Delwiler Brothers Inc. for the basic bid. Another $1.7 million bid for a sludge handler was also awarded earlier.

The only bid received for the 1974 sidewalk improvement program was from Clawson Construction Co. in the amount of $25,992.20.

Other contracts for the project include about 100 feet of sidewalk to be dropped from the project along with some other extra work such as tree removal. This will bring the figure within the $5,000 estimate of the 3,800 feet of sidewalk proposed in the bid.

The city also issued a call for bids for a truck to be used in the street department and a tractor for the parks department along with a one-ton truck for the water department. The bids will be opened July 15 at the city offices.

In other action the council continued efforts which began last February to obtain an operator for the city-county airport's restaurant facility.

Jerome gas truck burns

By CHARLOTTE BEEL
Times-News writer

JEROME—A fully-loaded gasoline truck caught fire Monday at a farm southwest of Jerome, but quick action by firemen prevented a disastrous explosion.

Truck driver Neil Silver had arrived about 9 a.m. at the first of his morning delivery stops, the B.K. Pierce farm, when he noticed the back seat and the underneath of the truck were on fire.

Truck owner George Silver of Jerome Gas and Oil said Neil had picked up the truck that morning from a shop where a new motor had been installed. He loaded the truck with 1,400 gallons of gas and 100 gallons of diesel fuel before leaving for his morning deliveries, George Silver said.

After Neil noticed the flames, he used a hand fire extinguisher to attempt to contain the fire while a member of the Pierce family called the Jerome Rural Fire Department.

The first fire truck arrived about 9:30 a.m. at the farm, located three miles west and one and one-half miles south of Jerome. Some firemen pumped foam onto the gas truck from the smaller pumper trucks. The large pumper was used to spray canal water in a steady stream on the truck to keep it cool.

Several times, firemen thought the fire was contained, but it broke out again. The gas truck kept getting hotter so the rural firemen called on the city department to bring another big tanker to keep the heat down.

Spectators hampered the firemen's work at times, and the danger of explosion made them urge fire watchers to leave the scene.

One fireman said "if this thing explodes, it's going to take everybody with it."

George Silver said the fire may have been caused by faulty wiring. He said replacement would run about $20,000.

10-speed Robin Hood may be a foul of law

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — "Robin Hood" has been riding his 10-speed bicycle to the rescue of motorists whose parking meters have expired, but his merry scheme may have run afoul of the local sheriff.

Chivalrous to the end, Bruce Vanier, 23, says he's willing to be a test case.

Vanier was ordered to appear Tuesday before Assistant City Attorney David Felger to discuss possible violations of the law of the realm.

Vanier, an unemployed construction worker, spends his time patrolling the streets in search of expired parking meters. He dismounts, deposits the required change and leaves a note under the car's windshield wiper.

"Hello! You have just been rescued from a $5 parking ticket by the Robin Hood Public Parking Aid," the note reads. "Your time had expired, endangering you to the perils of a parking violation. Could you please send $1 so we may continue to bring this service to you and others?"

Vanier leaves a stamped, self-addressed envelope with each note. He says he and a friend, who started the enterprise by investing $12 each, are just about breaking even.

"Dear 'Robin Hood,'" began one note accompanying payment from one motorist, "Keep up the good work! I'd gladly pay you a dollar any day than a $5 spot to the cops."

Vanier said, "I suppose you could look at it many ways — as a public service, as a money-making thing, or as ripping off the city. I'd like to think of it as a public service. If I break even, I'll be happy."

Felger doesn't know quite what to call it yet. He said on Tuesday he will discuss possible violation of an ordinance which prohibits parking more than two hours in a two-hour zone regardless whether more money has been deposited in the meter. He said he would also discuss possible charges of throwing a missile at a car and begging.

Felger, who doesn't appear to be quite as ruthless as the legendary sheriff of Nottingham, also said it is possible there is no violation involved at all and that Vanier's activity is perfectly legal.

"It could be a close question," Felger said.

Vanier said he was willing to be a test case if charges were brought. However, he has suspended his rescue work until he meets with Felger.

"It was sort of a test run," he said. "The public seemed to like it."

Gem air rule acceptable

BOISE (UPI) — With a couple of modifications, Idaho's new indirect source air pollution regulation will be acceptable to the federal government, a regional Environmental Protection Agency official testified today.

Richard F. White, Seattle program adviser to the EPA, said the definition of "urbanized area" must be included in the regulations of the Department of Environmental and Community Services.

He added that public notification procedures must provide for notification to other appropriate state and local agencies in the region where the proposed source will be located.

By that, he added, he meant both inside and outside the state "such as the Washington Department of Ecology."

"We strongly recommend that the department include in the regulation a description of the type of analysis to be performed and the basis for determining whether construction of a proposed facility will be approved or denied," White added.

White and J.R. Sparrow, Nampa, a representative of Daum Industries were the only persons to testify at the public hearing. Sparrow asked for some minor changes — especially in definitions.

White said that with the proposed modifications, plus addition of some other materials, the EPA can rescind its indirect source regulation and allow the state to operate under its own.

US beats deadline for Laotian pullout

(c) Washington Star-News
VIENTIANE — The United States Monday completed withdrawal of its military and paramilitary personnel from Laos, informed sources said, ending 10 years of direct U.S. combat involvement in the Laos War.

The Americans "left as quietly as they had come. There were no official announcements and most of the personnel, dressed in civilian clothes, left aboard commercial flights."

One of the last to leave today was a "case officer," an American who had handled irregular forces during the Laos fighting.

By completing its withdrawal the United States is one day ahead of the 60-day period set by the Laos peace protocols for foreign troop withdrawal after the formation April 5 of the Laos coalition government with — the Communists. The U.S. withdrawal contrasts with Hanoi's failure to withdraw at least 30,000 combat troops in Laos, Lao defense ministry sources said.

U.S. military involvement began exactly 10 years ago this month, when U.S. Air Force strikes against the North Vietnamese bridge in the eastern Plain Des Jarrés.

Major land repair job seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If coal fields in nine Western states — including Utah — are to be strip mined to ease the energy crisis, it will take an "unprecedented national effort" to prevent devastating damage to the landscape, a study financed by the Ford Foundation said today.

Vast tracts of the strip-mined land could be reclaimed, the study said. If the coal mine companies were forced to meet strict land rehabilitation standards, and are required to use advanced mining techniques.

But the study warned, "rehabilitation on this unprecedented scale will not occur simply because society wishes it, but only of society demands it."

"The mining industry itself should and can readily bear the full expense of rehabilitation in the Western coal area with the addition of a few cents per ton to the price of coal."

The study — carried out by a committee from the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering — also warned against strip mining in some areas.

"Rehabilitation in the desert areas is extremely low. In the sagebrush foothill regions rehabilitation is a challenge — even the best of methods would be subject to failure during drought years."

The coal deposits extend from the Canadian border to the Mexican border, and include all or parts of Arizona, Colorado, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

The fields would be tapped to help meet President Nixon's call for a tripling of coal production by 1980 to ease U.S. reliance on foreign energy sources.

"Current projections of coal production indicate that 140 square miles would be disturbed by strip mining by 1990, and 300 square miles by the year 2000."

A standard of "complete restoration" cannot be met anywhere, but "with effective legislation, and given a safety factor of sufficient rainfall, and good soil, satisfactory rehabilitation has a high chance of success" in many areas, the study said.

Seattle expected to enter NFL at owners conference

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seattle, which has a domed stadium under construction and is expected to get another major league baseball team in a couple of years, is expected to be added to the National Football League at the owners' meeting beginning today.

The NFL also will be keeping an eye on the challenge of the World Football League, whose teams have started their first season in 1974. The status of negotiations between the league and the NFL players is expected to be discussed at the meeting.

Association—which may delay the opening of training camps in the established league.

Expansion will be one of the first topics on the agenda. Tampa Bay, for the 27th franchise in the NFL, at a cost of $16 million, at a meeting here in April and at that time the league said it would add at least one more team this year to begin play in 1975.

The other strong candidates, besides Seattle, for the 28th franchise, are Phoenix and Honolulu. Memphis apparently is out of the running after accepting a NFL team.

There's no guarantee another city will be added this week, although it is considered likely—but if one is, Seattle appears the strongest candidate. A new stadium is being built in Seattle, which had an American League baseball team in 1969, lost it to Milwaukee, and now apparently will get one back within a couple of years as settlement of the city's antitrust suit against baseball over the franchise move.

The owners must tread carefully in any dealings with the NFL because of legal complications. It's generally agreed the NFL cannot legally restrain from signing NFL players to future contracts.

The owners also will be anxious to learn how the players association reacted to the league's "good will" offer in picking up health insurance premiums for the players from June 1 to July 15 at a cost of $60,000.

Gabrielson survives shock in British event

GULANES, Scotland (UPI) — Jim Gabrielson, 22-year-old American Walker Cup player, "teetered on the brink of a shock first round exit from the British Amateur golf championship on the golf-linked Gullane Links at Mull of Galloway.

But he escaped trouble and Gabrielson, from Atlanta, was two down with four holes to play, against Irish teenager Joey Purcell, then won three holes for a nerve-rattling one-hole margin to join defending champion and Walker cup teammate Dick Siderow, from Westport, Conn., in the second round.

While Siderow drew heavily on his experience of British conditions to master the cold, northwesterly wind and damp course, Gabrielson was always struggling after winning the first hole.

The 19-year-old Purcell moved to a comfortable two-hole lead after the first round, but he was not to have his chance of a remarkable victory. Gabrielson won the 15th when the Irishman hit two wild hooks and then squared at the next where his opponent obligingly three putted.

"I gave him a chance and he grabbed it with both hands," admitted Purcell, after Gabrielson had taken the 17th for his third hole in a row.

The American hit a seven iron for his second shot to the 558 yard hole and was left with a six-inch tap-in for an eagle three. His bogey live at the 18th was good enough to put him through. "That boy is a fine player and I was looking bad for me until he let me off the hook," commented the relieved American.

Siderow, out in a two-under-par 34 before the wind reached full strength, turned six-up and had no difficulty in beating another Irishman, Perry Maloney, 5 and 3.

Rockets sign pair from Carolina team

DENVER (UPI) — Carl Scheer and Larry Brown, who combined as general manager and coach to develop the Carolina Cougars into one of the American Basketball Association's strongest teams, were named to similar posts Monday with the Denver Rockets.

Scheer and Brown had been given permission to seek other employment by Carolina owner Tedd Munchak, who said he would not operate a team next season.

Brown, who played his last year and a half in the NBA with Denver, coached Carolina the past two years and was named the league's coach of the year after his 1972-73 rookie season. He compiled a 104-64 record with the Cougars.

Scheer was with Carolina four years and was named ABA executive of the year for 1972-73.

The two replace Alex Hannum, whose three-year reign as coach-general manager ended with his dismissal April 30. The Rockets tied San Diego for last place in the Western Division on a 37-47 win-loss mark.

"There's only one way to finish and that's first," said Scheer. "It's been said of me I'm the only guy in pro basketball that feels an 84-0 record is possible."

The new management team faces one major challenge immediately—replacing all-star guard Ralph Simpson, the Rockets' leading scorer the past two years. Simpson, announced last month he wanted out of the remaining three years of his four-year contract with Denver, so he could negotiate with Chicago of the NBA.

Ranger madness hits Texas baseball fans in surprising switch from last year

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — On a late September night last year an estimated crowd of 2,000 which looked more like 900 filtered its way into Arlington Stadium to watch the Texas Rangers.

There were 29,000 people crammed into Arlington Stadium, some 4,000 more than capacity. People were sitting in the bleachers and jammed together like sardines, but they didn't seem to mind since Texas won.

"Crowds like these lift you up," said Manager Billy Martin. "It's a lot easier to play the kind of game you want to."

"When I was at Minnesota (as a coach in 1967) I think the crowds in Boston helped us the most. We went into Boston for two games at the end of the season and needed to win just one of them for the pennant."

And the rush to the stadium reached a high point last weekend with 78,705 attending the three-game series with Baltimore. That was Texas' biggest series in history and boosted its league leading total to 400,028 for the season.

The middle game of that series featured a last night promotion and drew the largest throng in the more than two years of Rangers existence.

Although fans knew they were going to be involved in a horrid traffic jam and would have to put up with concession and restroom facilities unequipped for oversized crowds, they showed up anyway.

"But the crowd lifted Boston up 10 feet high and it had to do with them winning the pennant that year. And the crowd has had a lot to do with our performance this year."

The middle game of that series featured a last night promotion and drew the largest throng in the more than two years of Rangers existence.

Although fans knew they were going to be involved in a horrid traffic jam and would have to put up with concession and restroom facilities unequipped for oversized crowds, they showed up anyway.

"But the crowd lifted Boston up 10 feet high and it had to do with them winning the pennant that year. And the crowd has had a lot to do with our performance this year."

NCAA track event opens today with decathlon

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The 53rd NCAA track and field championships open Tuesday with the first half of the decathlon, but the heavy action does not commence until Thursday when UCLA begins its fight for a fourth straight title.

Roger George of Fresno State and Craig Higham of Oregon, last year's second and fourth place finishers, should battle it out in the decathlon, which annually starts off the NCAA track carnival.

Broncos will stay on program

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State University will continue to compete in baseball, tennis, golf and skiing on an independent basis, athletic director Bylle Smith said Monday.

BSU does not compete in swimming, the fifth sport recently dropped by the Big Sky Conference.

"We plan to continue with our current athletic program," Smith said. "We have always felt that we should provide a well-rounded program, offering as many activities as possible for our students."

"We will be competing as an independent in those sports that were discontinued from Big Sky competition. We will continue to plan good competition with a balanced schedule, consisting primarily of schools in the Pacific Northwest and Rocky Mountain areas on a home and home basis."

BSU president John B. Harms said the university also will continue to develop a women's intercollegiate sports program and study the implementation of club sports programs as dictated by the student interests.

Boise St. signs for Aggie game

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State University has signed a one-game football contract to host the Utah State Aggies in an expanded Bronco Stadium.

Lyle Smith said Monday.

Smith said the expansion project, which will begin at the end of the 1974 season, will give the stadium a seating capacity of 21,000 seats. The current stadium, which was completed in the summer of 1970, holds 14,500 seats.

"We are very pleased to be able to host the Utah State Aggies in our expanded stadium in 1975," Smith said. "I know there are many Utah state alums in southern Idaho and the Aggies have been a popular team when they played here in the past against the University of Idaho."

"We are happy to play them as they have a fine football program," he said. "We have explored future dates but through 1980 we have not been able to come up with a common open date."

Marichal will visit specialist

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Red Sox pitcher Jim Marichal, suffering from numbness in his pitching hand, flew to San Francisco Monday to be examined by a specialist who performed previous surgery on the veteran right-hander.

Marichal, 35, accompanied the Red Sox to Minnesota, where the team opened a three-game series Monday night, but immediately boarded a plane for the West Coast.

It had been reported earlier that Marichal would attempt to throw along the sidelines in Minnesota, if the weather was warm, to see if he could work out the numbness in his thumb and first two fingers.

The veteran right-hander with the classic high kick was examined Sunday by Red Sox team physician Thomas Tierney, who labeled the problem as "Scalenus Anticus Syndrome."

In layman's terms, the injury involves calcium deposits on the cervical vertebrae which are pressing off a nerve and causing the numbness.

Texas El Paso. The Bruins also expected a stern test last year in Baton Rouge, La., from PACA rival Southern California, but UCLA won in a romp.

Only five defending champions are back this year, and one of those—Texas' Robert Primeaux in the 440-yard hurdles—is not expected to repeat because of a hairline foot fracture that caused him to miss half the season.

Back for another try at individual championships they won last year are Charlie Maguire of Penn State in the six mile, Hans Hoglund of Texas El Paso in the 3000 yard, Jacques Accombay of Kent State in the hammer throw and Marshall Dill of Michigan State in the 220-yard dash.

Miller defeats Nicklaus easily

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — U.S. Open Champion Johnny Miller and Women's Open titlist Susie Maxwell Berning shot under-par scores Monday at Tanglewood Golf Club, site of this year's PGA national championship, in the 21st annual "round of champions" during national golf day.

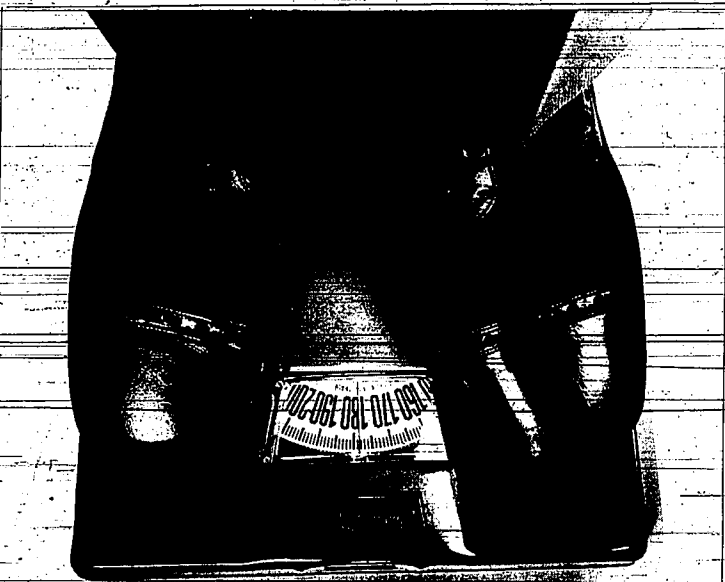

Miller fashioned a three-under-par 67 over Tanglewood's 7,650-yard PGA championship course, while PGA winner Jack Nicklaus experienced driving problems and finished with a two-over 72.

Mrs. Berning shot a 73, one under against women's par, while Mary Mills, LPGA

For the person who wants a trimmer figure, Weight Watchers* now offers one at a trimmer price.

From June 3rd to the 15th, you can join Weight Watchers* for only $4 — a savings of $3 on your initial registration and first-meeting fee. (Each week thereafter costs only $2, for as long as you want to attend.)

That's quite a bargain.

But, the Weight Watchers* program is a bargain anytime. Jim Puckett of Ruth, Nevada is a living example. In just 13 months, Jim went from 391 to 195 pounds, all while eating three balanced, satisfying meals a day.

"Of course, the friendly bunch of people at Weight Watchers* make a difference, too," he said. "We all understand what we want to do and we encourage each other to do it. That really makes a difference!" Take it from Jim and thousands like him—the Weight Watchers* program of permanent weight control is really a value — especially now. So join us before June 15th* and save.

* (In some areas, weekly classes may end before June 15th.)

You don't have to be alone anymore.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime, especially early morning, is excellent for putting in motion some special talent you have through an unusual opportunity. Later, the good aspects gradually decrease in force, so do everyday things then.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan some amusement that will be pleasing, or do something unusual with a partner. Then get busy on important routine work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Keep promises made with more speed than heretofore. Talk over practical affairs with mate and come to a better understanding.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Partners will gladly go along with your ideas early if you clarify them—and then carry through on whatever work is necessary.

MOON-CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan work early and you get much done. Take co-workers into your confidence and you can work better together. Avoid a horror.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to be more willing to go along with the ideas of good friends where recreation is concerned. More courtesy with mate brings finer rapport.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of fretting about those home tasks, roll up your sleeves and get them done. Not a good day or p.m. for entertaining at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Keep out of any argument between a fellow worker and an associate—or you become the fall guy. Assist others. Don't fall for tricks of troublemakers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although it may be a bother, be sure you get that money matter handled with real care, since it is important—revise budget.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to handle personal conditions better, so get an early start on them. Avoid a grumpy group. Await a better time to get together.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Clear the decks for more important activities. You can solve a friend's problem easily, so be willing to do so when asked.

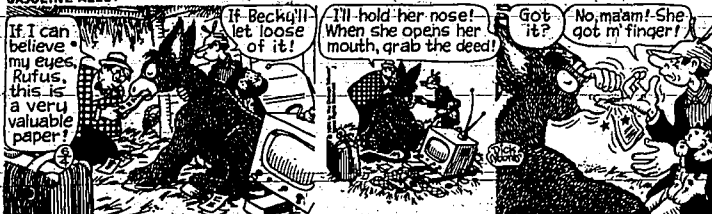

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Help good pals who come to you for assistance. You need some social life in p.m., so get right into it. Be poised when others are excited.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into those civic matters that are your particular cup of tea and add to present prestige. Pay bills—use your real ability.

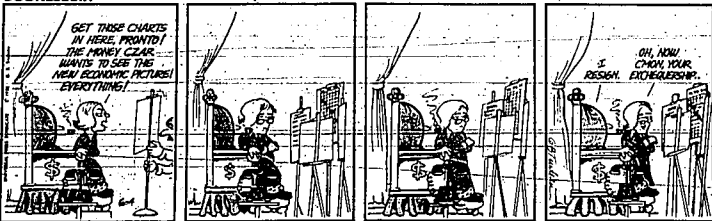

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: He or she should be given the finest courses of education since his mind will absorb everything like a sponge. Don't be afraid to give a heavy schedule, but make sure sports are also indulged in to build up the body and strengthen the voice, since your youngster is very articulate. Teach early to stay on the positive side of life and avoid the negative. Pay attention to diet.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Too many boys grow up with names they don't like. Believe the Indians had the right idea. They gave their offspring temporary names. To be changed for more satisfactory monikers after they'd proved themselves in their teen years. Cray Horse, for example, started out as Curly. And Sitting Bull began as Jumping Badger.

What's so dangerous about that deep-sea diver's almost known as the bands in said diver to feel all is well much in the manner of a happy drunk. When afflicted that way, the victim gets a bit stubborn about taking guidance from topeide, it's reported. The pain comes later.

Q. "Where did the avocado originate?"
A. Probably Jamaica.

TOWERS

What the archaeologists were trying to figure out for a long time was the purpose of two towers in the Peruvian Andes. They stood atop opposite hills of a high pass. And clearly were built many centuries ago. Finally, the historians concluded from additional evidence that they were put up by primitive tribesmen who hung a gigantic net between them in an effort to catch the sun.

Statistically today, both parents can be expected to live at least 14 years after the marriage of their last child. Odds are one parent will live another seven years after that. Just 75 years ago, chances were one parent would have died before the last child got married.

IN BED

If you read in bed, a bibliophile is what you are, friend. There's a fool-long frog in Africa that weighs about as much as a fox-terrier. ... Yes, it's a medical fact that women tend to perspire much more heavily when expecting. ... In Missouri, the game of mumbletype is outlawed on Sunday, remember. Not less than more than half the Americans, according to the pollsters, complain of intermittent insomnia.

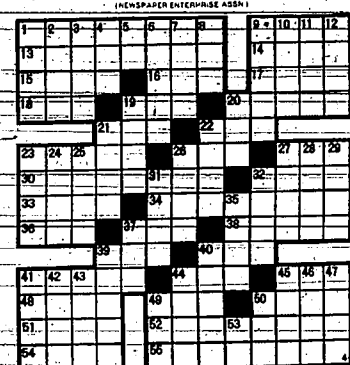

Nearly all the banks of India for many years displayed numerous metal boxes filled with rupees in their windows. About the same way department stores have display clothes to passersby along the streets. Those Indian bankers said their depositors wouldn't believe they had the money, if it weren't in sight.

Those statisticians in debate with cynics like to point out that the famous financier J. P. Morgan admitted he often got stockmarket tips from a noted astrologer by the name of Ebenezer Adams.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a spillover of the previous day's powerful rally, stocks opened broadly higher in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday.

Notable after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial averages had risen 0.24 to 821.50. Advances led declines by nearly five-to-one, of the 375 issues traded.

In the previous session, a rally that was modest most of the day swelled in the final hour, as the Dow gained 19.09 to 821.50. It was the largest advance in the blue chip indicator since March 5.

The buying, though largely technical, according to analysts, was spurred by news that the Federal Reserve had lowered its prime lending rate, that charged on loans to most creditworthy business borrowers to 11.6 per cent from the record 11.75 per cent.

On the market, close to 100 million shares of common stock were traded. Much smaller bank, Southwest Bank of St. Louis, reduced its prime to 11.1 per cent from the previous 11.75 per cent.

The move by the two banks was the first relief Wall Street has had from soaring interest rates in three months. But analysts hesitated to say whether a genuine downturn now is under way.

Evening clouds, winds promised

Twila Falls, northside, Burley-Rupert area: Variable cloudiness, windy and turning cooler through Wednesday with a chance of evening scattered showers in the evening. Lows tonight in the 40s with highs Wednesday 70 to 75.

Outlook for Thursday, slight chance of showers.

Camas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley: Intermittent clouds and gusty winds will bring cooler air to this area through Wednesday. There will also be a chance of mountain showers this evening. Lows tonight in the 30s with highs Wednesday 65 to 70.

Outlook for Thursday, slight chance of showers.

Synopsis: An upper-air trough of low pressure along with a series of surface frontal systems are moving through the Pacific northwest.

As a result, Idaho will experience cooler temperatures with scattered showers or thundershowers today and again late tonight through Wednesday.

The greatest amount of shower activity will occur from the central mountains north. Most valleys will experience strong gusty winds, especially the Magic and upper Snake.

The extended outlook through Saturday indicates cool unsettled weather will continue with some periods of scattered showers likely.

Gem Highway 21 gets face lifting

BOISE — With the official opening of one of Idaho's most scenic highways, S. H. 21 between Boise and Stanley, May 30, many travelers might be curious about this 131 mile route.

For the past few years, the Idaho Department of Highways had made a major effort to open this highway to traffic by the Memorial Day weekend.

This year, several massive snow slides effectively blocked the roadway in several places — depths of 10 to 20 feet. Rather than waste hundreds of hours of manpower and fuel, the Highway Department decided to let nature take its course and let the sun work for them.

When the slides were melted down to about 10 feet, maintenance crews from Boise and Shoshone attacked the snow with bulldozers, front-end loaders and trucks. While the roadway opened late this year — the money saved by the state was considerable.

For those motorists wanting to drive this route, the Highway Department would caution that there is a 6.8 mile construction project underway between Lowman and Grandjean. This is the last unpaved portion of State Highway 21, and when completed this fall by Karl Woodall and Sons of Boise for the Federal Highway Administration, will offer the driver a paved surface from Boise to Stanley.

Traffic is maintained through this improvement project but 30 minute delays could be encountered during working days.

Official firm on bauxite tax

(C) New York Times Service KINGSTON, JAMAICA — Prime Minister Michael Manley has reiterated that there was no possibility that the government would reopen the question of its planned tax on the production of bauxite.

"That's a settled issue," he said in an interview last week. "I will not increase the tax now before parliament and should become law early in June, and Manley emphasized the Jamaican position in the face of efforts by United States and Canadian aluminum companies to have the question reopened.

Former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, calling "by half" of the Reynolds Aluminum Company, called on Manley Thursday to discuss possible review of the revenue decision. John D. Harper, chairman of the Aluminum Company of America, also flew down to the meeting.

Apart from the revenue question, Manley showed himself flexible. In the subsequent interview, he said that he would be "entirely responsive" to realistic arguments about the future operations of the companies. Jamaica seeks to transform her relationship with the companies into a "new structure of partnership."

"We want the operations to be successful," he said. "We're not taking an ideological position, or working off any emotional heat. This is a business proposition and we will make purely commercial calculations.

The most sensitive aspect of the next round of talks, which are due to begin in late June, is the question of Jamaican participation in the bauxite mining and alumina processing industries here.
